SPOT LIGHT TO BE THROWN ON MERGER

GENERAL MOTORS, DUPONTS AND UNITED STATES STEEL

Buying of the Duponts de Nemours Powder Company of U. S. Steel Stock Frowned Upon By New Member of U. S. Trade Commission Who Orders Probe Be Made of Relationship of Financial Giants.

A sweeping inquiry into the relations between the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., the General Motors Corporation and the U. S. Steel Corporation was ordered Friday at Washington by the federal trade commission.

The investigation will be conducted by the chief economist and will go directly to the question of the probable economic consequences of a community of interests among the three largest industrial corporations in the United States.

Upon the report of the economist will depend future action by the commission. The move of the commission, which came wholly unexpectedly, was upon motion of Commissioner A. F. Myers, the newest member of the trade regulatory body.

In its resolution directing the inquiry, the commission called attention to the published financial reports of the du Pont company showing that it had a large investment in the stock of the General Motors Corporation.

The resolution also recited that it had been currently reported in the press that the du Pont concern recently had acquired a large holding in the capital stock of the Steel Corporation with the expectation of having a number of directors in that organization as it now has in General Motors.

The establishment of a community of interest among these three corporations was declared to be "a matter of public concern." The commission then called attention to its authority of law to inquire into the organization, business conduct, practices and management of corporations generally.

This inquiry promises to be the most extensive the commission has conducted since it investigated the "big five" meat packers several years ago by direction of President Wilson.

The resolution adopted by the commission follows:

"Whereas, it appears from published financial reports of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., that it has a large investment in the stock of the General Motors Corporation, and

"Whereas, it is currently reported in the press that the du Pont company has recently acquired in the capital stock of the U. S. Steel Corporation, that it expects to have a number of directors representing its interests elected to the board of the latter company and in other ways to develop a close corporate connection among them and

"Whereas, the establishment of a community of interests among these three corporations, which are reputed to be among the largest industrial corporations in this country, is a matter of public concern, and

"Whereas, the act creating this commission authorizing it to inquire into the organization, business conduct, practices and management of the said corporations now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the chief economist of this commission be directed to cause an inquiry to be made into the relationships, direct or indirect among the U. S. Steel Corporation, the General Motors Co., and the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., tending to bring them or any other important industrial corporation under a common ownership, control of management with information as to the economic consequences of such community of interest and to report the facts to this commission."

In the absence of Pierre S. du Pont president, and other officials of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., at Wilmington, Delaware, the only statement obtainable regarding the federal trade commission's inquiry into the relationship between the du Pont General Motors, and U. S. Steel Corporation, was issued by the publicity department. It read:

"Officials of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., said Friday they knew nothing of the proposed investigation by the federal trade commission of the company's holdings in General Motors and U. S. Steel. The officials further said, knowing nothing about it, they had nothing to say."

LAW AND ORDER LEADER HELD ON LIQUOR CHARGE.

Burt H. White, 34, president of the Law and Order League, was arrested Friday afternoon at Toledo on a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law.

White is said by federal prohibition officers to have been implicated by two alleged bootleggers arrested Thursday night as the intended purchaser of a case of beer and a quart of supposed whisky found in their possession.

The Law and Order League, under the direction of White, had just announced a campaign to attempt to rid Toledo of places conducting illegal business, such as disorderly houses, gambling and bootlegging places.

WOMEN HELD CONVENTION IN OAKLAND

Business Woman Has Become Strong Factor in the Present Day Life.

Women, perhaps, have reason to congratulate themselves upon the measure of their advancement in America, during the last quarter century at least.

The national convention of Business and Professional Women's clubs recently met in Oakland, California. There were 2,000 delegates present. It is to be doubted that the majority of complacent masculinity appreciate this remarkable showing of feminine strength. They will be compelled to realize it, however, for it is here, and daily becomes more evident.

The business and professional woman has become a strong factor in the fabric of present day civilization. She is to be found in every honorable walk of life open to men. And she is maintaining herself in these walks.

Two thousand delegates should represent the best selected personalities from wide and varied groups of women in business and the professions. What then of the grand army of followers, whose representatives they are?

The convention at Oakland should open the eyes of the doubting—and possibly lagging—Thomases, who may have been indulged the patriarchal belief that a woman's place exclusively is in the home—her divine mission, the bearing of children.

Women will continue to be home-makers and child-bearers. They are horizons of beauty and usefulness and aspiration in her comprehension today that never bounded the lives of the millions of women who moved within the circumscribed circles of the feminine sphere in the old dead centuries.

The day has passed—and the Oakland convention seems clearly to indicate the fact—when the talents and industry of women can be discounted by the fact of her sex.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

STOUTSVILLE CAMPMEETING

The climax of the Stoutsville camp meeting will be reached Sunday when large crowds are expected to come and hear J. Balmer Showers, assistant editor of the Religious Telescope.

Dr. Showers has a wonderful, magnetic personality and it will be well worth your while to plan to come and hear him as he is a well known orator.

TRIPPED ON WIRE.

Mrs. George McGinness, of East Ohio street, tripped Friday afternoon near her home on a piece of wire and was thrown headlong. Her face and arms were badly skinned.

WESTERN UNION TIME.

Western Union-Naval observatory time signals are transmitted daily to some 120,000 subscribers, over approximately 250,000 miles of wire, connecting 25,000 Western Union offices, and the stations of some 200 railway systems. This, of course, is but a fraction of the company's total wire mileage, as there are many wires between the more important points, but it is enough to "hook up" the entire country.

By means of these electric signals the true time as computed by the United States naval observatory, is recorded on master clocks in Western Union offices, and from these the clocks of individual subscribers are corrected automatically every hour. Many hundreds of miles of local circuits, are necessary in the larger cities to connect subscribers' clock with the main office. In New York, for example, there are more than 1,500 miles of local clock circuits.

ELKS' NEW RULER

BODY OF FIRST NATIONAL BANK CASHIER FOUND

Body of Arthur Harry, Missing Wellston Man Found at Chillicothe.

A sad and gruesome sequel developed Thursday night to the exclusive story printed nine weeks ago by The Gazette telling that Arthur Harry, 45, cashier of the First National bank at Wellston, who had been a patient at a sanitarium at Cincinnati, and had disappeared from that institution, had, shortly after his disappearance, spent a night at the Warner hotel here sitting all night in the lobby and then disappeared again, this last two or three weeks ago.

Following the clue to the missing cashier's presence in this vicinity, a systematic search of the banks of the Scioto river starting at the Bridge street bridge was begun yesterday morning and the searchers were rewarded for their labors, last night, by the discovery of the badly decomposed body of Arthur Harry on the east bank of the river near Edgewater, some six miles southeast of Chillicothe.

The body was identified by Mrs. Harry, the missing cashier's wife, and by his brother-in-law, J. C. Gooding a lumber dealer of Wellston.

The body was found by John Rupert and an assistant who had been employed by Harry's relatives to make the search.

Immediately on report of the finding of the body, Deputy Sheriff Arthur Crago and Tom Ware, Jesse Jacobs and Edgar Ward, with the Ware ambulance, hurried down to the scene, Deputy Crago at the same time telephoning for Coroner Albert Frey. The body was taken at once to Ware's.

The body was found on the north river bank face down, as it was reported three clairvoyants had predicted it would be.

A belt buckle, gold crowned tooth, shoes and trousers made the identification of the body complete.

Prior to rendering an official verdict as to the cause of death, Coroner Frey said that Harry had either deliberately drowned himself, or had fallen from, or been knocked by a train from the railroad bridge over the Scioto.

Mr. Harry was born in Jackson county, being a son of Daniel J. Harry. He was well known and popular among the bankers of this section of Ohio, being also a Mason, an Elk and a Rotarian. Two children, a daughter, Patricia, and a son, Arthur Harry Jr., survive him.

The body was taken to Wellston. "Accidental drowning" was Coroner Frey's official verdict.—Scioto Gazette.

MILLIONS

Are Spent In the United States For Greeting Cards.

Few persons realize the magnitude of the industry that supplies the American people with its greeting cards, points out J. P. McEvoy in an article in this week's Liberty. "The greeting-card industry," he explains, "in spite of its phenomenal growth and undeniable importance, still exists in the popular mind as 'something to do with post cards.' "But in one year," he continues, "more than $60,000,000 was spent for greeting cards in this country. One company alone lists more than 250 varieties of cards. And for the cards issued last year 27,842 verses were written.

"The greeting-card industry skims the cream of the best paper mills in this country, and is the largest importer of the finest handmade papers from all over the world. It is the greeting-card industry that has raised the standard of American printing and plate-making until they no longer need bow even to Leipzig and Munich traditions."

1927 CORN CROP LOWEST SINCE 1901

Washington, July 28.—The 1927 corn crop, estimated at 2,275,000,000 bushels, will be the lowest produced in the United States in 26 years.

"This year's crop," government officials say, "is unusually late. Much of it still is under cultivation, whereas under normal conditions it should have been laid by.

"Corn responds to warm weather, and this season has been cool and wet. Records of the past 36 years indicate that the amount of rainfall is the dominant factor governing corn yield."

The nation produced 2,645,000,000 bushels last year.

HORSE BEATS TRAIN

Newark, O., July 28.—(UP.)—Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, speaking at a centennial celebration of the Newark Division Veterans' Association today, told of the first test of a steam locomotive on the B. & O. lines.

The B. & O. was chartered in 1827 and started operation with horsepower trains in 1828. It was not until 1830 that steam locomotive was tested. It was called upon to race a horse-drawn train along the road's double track from Baltimore to Ellicott Mills, 14 miles.

The horse won.

Jim Lathbury's Ghost

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright)

"BUT I do not love you, Henry," protested Elsie Freeman, drawing back from Henry Flagg's nearness. "I thought that you understood that after Jim's death I could never care for any man in that way."

Henry Flagg frowned darkly. "Elsie," he said patiently, "you and Jim were only engaged to be married."

"I am afraid, Henry, that I could not be happy unless I truly loved you," said the girl calmly.

"Why can't you love me?" he demanded furiously. "Jim Lathbury was my own cousin, and people said we were enough alike to be twins—so why can't you care for me—as well as you did for him?"

Elsie stared at him pityingly. She had never cared much for Henry, but because he was Jim's cousin and they had been in the war together, she did try to be nice to him, for Jim's sake.

"Don't you really believe that Jim was killed?" he asked bluntly.

Elsie paled. "Why, I have doubted it—did you?"

"No—of course I believe it—haven't I succeeded to his estate? I can't help believing it, Elsie," he went on in a low, intense tone, "because ever since I have been living at Lathbury house, I have been haunted by Jim's ghost!"

Elsie stared at him with wide open blue eyes. Then, the lids suddenly drooping, she slipped from her chair to the floor, unconscious.

Henry rang for a maid. "You better get her to bed, Minna," said Henry.

Minna brought some tea, and Elsie picked up a magazine, but always between her eyes and the printed page appeared the brave, handsome face of her lover, Jim Lathbury, who had been an aviator during the World war. Jim had been reported killed, but his body was never recovered. Five years had passed since that time, and still Elsie, who had been his promised wife, mourned him, and the property went to Henry Flagg, Mr. Lathbury's nearest relative, a cousin.

That evening Henry came to inquire about Elsie.

"Henry," she said, "did you really mean what you said about seeing Jim's ghost at the house?"

"Yes," he said.

"I believe you," she said frankly. "And I want to see it, too, Henry—say tomorrow night."

"Very well—of course you know it will not be until midnight."

She nodded. "I will bring Minna with me—mother is going to New York for a couple of days with father."

The next night at eleven o'clock Elsie drove over to Lathbury house while Minna shivered inside the little car. It was a bright starry night, and the dewy fragrance of many flowers came from the big gardens that would have been Elsie's if she and Jim had been married. Elsie thought she saw a man's figure down in the rose garden, and she decided that she would speak to Henry about it, but when they reached the front door, there Henry was waiting. He hurried them up to the picture gallery. Elsie tossed her coat and hat on a seat and sank down in the deep chair. She confided to Minna the reason why she had come, and Minna sat down in a remote corner to wait.

About five minutes to twelve a servant summoned Henry to the telephone, and with a promise to Elsie to return at once, Henry disappeared.

Elsie was thankful to be alone for if her lost lover was to be there, even in spirit, she wanted to be alone.

Then, suddenly, Jim Lathbury was there!

Elsie sat stunned, noting his khaki uniform, muddy and wet, saw Jim's despairing face, white under the aviator's close hood. Then, the lights dimming to a mere grayness, he vanished, and then the lights were on again, and Henry stood beside her holding her hand in his cold one.

"You saw him, dear?" he whispered hoarsely.

"Yes," wailed the girl, "and before I could speak to him, Jim had gone away—Oh, Jim, Jim, Jim!" and the girl tore herself away and Minna's strong arms were around her and held her up.

Then there was a confusion, for a man suddenly dashed into the gallery and knocked Henry to the floor where he remained too inert to arise. Elsie, giving one glance at the stranger, found it was no stranger at all—it was Jim Lathbury, her own true love in the flesh.

"It is Mr. Jim! The real Mr. Jim!" exclaimed Minna.

But Elsie knew by the warm kisses that covered her face, that at last her belief in Jim being alive was vindicated. He whispered a story of being wounded, captured, and of his not knowing even his own name or identity. He had remained in Germany working as a farmhand all these years, until a great doctor saw him, recognized him and effected a cure. He had returned to find his parents dead and his estate in the hands of his cousin. Tonight he had just arrived when Elsie saw him in the rose garden, and he had come into the house—it was Elsie's scream of "Jim—Jim—Jim!" that had brought him into action.

So the ghost of Henry's imagination had talked and claimed his promised wife.

SHAKE UP DRY UNITS

To Drop Agents In Buffalo and New York.

Washington, July 28.—(UP.)—Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Doran has ordered a general shakeup of the Buffalo and New York City dry offices.

Doran said several prohibition agents in each of the districts would be asked to resign. He requested Maurice Campbell, administrator at New York and

Andrew McCampbell, Buffalo administrator, to prepare reports recommending which agents should be dropped.

The shakeup, Doran believes, will aid in clearing up "the two most disturbing situations" in the prohibition organization.

Cretonnes Are in Fashion Picture

Women of Paris Favor Gayly Flowered Material for Summer Wear.

Beach and sports dresses of brightly flowered cretonne are to be found in the wardrobes of French women preparing to take themselves and their families to resorts for the hot months. French manufacturers, says a Paris fashion writer in the Kansas City Star, even put many washable cretonnes on the market.

Mother and children alike wear the inexpensive, cheerful frocks. One of the new ideas of the season for these cretonne dresses is the concealed belt. It may be an elastic run inside the blouse, brought out at one side only to tie in bow ends of a color contrasting with the cretonne.

Midseason showings at the biggest fashion houses indicate no change in the length of skirts.

Daytime dresses still hover about the knees and evening dresses are only a little longer. Certain dress-makers, who in the spring made an effort to lengthen skirts, have abandoned the movement and made their midseason frocks conform to the accepted length. It may be expected, however, that the autumn will see the effort renewed by such houses as Poiret and Vionnet, both champions of a longer skirt.

At the beginning of the season designers tried to lure women away from floral printed silks. Each day now shows an increasing number of new and fascinating silks on the market, and summer models of them at the dressmaking shops. The flowered silks resemble those of last season more closely now than they did earlier in the spring when the geometrical print was promising to sweep the garden designs out of the field.

The markets and fairs which are in almost continuous session in Paris are visited occasionally by smartly dressed women who are looking for old buttons of value among the rubbish of the counters. Antique silver, gold and brass buttons are prized trimmings for the afternoon dresses and few dressmaking houses supply the real thing.

With patience buttons of value may be found and bought for very small sums. Among them are old amber and turquoise fastenings, which are much coveted.

One of the new dancing dresses recently designed by Chantal is of sand colored georgette crepe with inset godets in the skirt of two tones of orange. On the shoulder of the dress is an arrangement of taffeta tulips in vivid shades, one of the flowers hanging head downward to a point as low as the hips.

If one scarf around the neck is good style, three are better, argue some young Parisians. The three-cornered scarf knotted at the side has for a long time been a standard article for sports wear in Paris.

Now the triple scarf idea, with contrasting colors, is an effort to vary the old theme. Harmonious pastel shades are chosen, no two of which are worn in the same manner. There may be one knot in front, one in back and another on the side.

The advance fall showings by important Paris dressmakers forecast popularity for brown in the ruddy and darker tones this autumn and several houses select it as the medium for showing their new tailor-mades.

At Worth's brown is used, but terra cotta is stressed. Patou also has a few tailor-mades in a deep brown that is almost purple. Bernard, who shows several tailored suits, also specializes in brown.

Another clause of the will leaves $1 to Roma Peters. With the exception of this $1 bequest, all the rest of the interest of Charles Kline, the testator's brother, goes to the children of Fay Carpenter, the testator's niece. The balance of the estate goes share and share alike to the following or their heirs: Christopher Kline, Carl Kline, David Kline, Grover Kline, Isal Watts and Effie Whitten. Gale Watts, a nephew, is named as administrator to serve without bond.—Chillicothe News-Advertiser.

BOY SCOUTS ARE PRAISED BY AVIATOR

Commander Byrd Says He Would Not Fear to Have Lads With Him on Trip.

Commander Richard E. Byrd, eminent hero of super-air exploration and scientific adventure, is not so far from boyhood as to have lost the glamour of its aspirations and its limitless dreams; indeed, he is very close to the dauntless realm of youth. In a greeting to members of the Boy Scouts of the world, directly addressing the Boy Scouts organization of France, he declared:

"I am tremendously interested in your movement, and want to send greetings from the Boy Scouts of America. Scouts get the kind of training that makes good aviators and great fellows for aviation. I would not hesitate to take with me on an Arctic flight a boy who had made a good Scout."

Thruout the world this message will thrill the souls of members of this wonderful organization in every country bright, brave lads will say: "Commander Byrd says we are worthy—that he would not fear to have one of us for companion in high est adventurous achievement. Hurrah for Byrd."

Yes, the commander understands boys. By this message, with its essence of implied comradeship, he has inspired hundreds of thousands of the finest lads in the world to adhere to the practices and ideals of an organization which labors to make men and patriots. Moreover, he thus confounds the preachings of those pacifists who rail at the Boy Scouts organization as an agency in support of militarism. The praise of Commander Byrd in this instance is of immeasurable value to the perpetuity of a rational, progressive civilization. — Cincinnati Enquirer.

Yellow Fever Hero

Gets Home as Reward

New York.—A former army private, crippled from the ravages of yellow fever when he served as a living laboratory in 1900 for Dr. Walter Reed, who was seeking to trace the origin of the disease, received a reward for his heroism recently. Through a committee appointed by the American Association for Medical Progress, John R. Kissinger has been deeded a home in Huntington, Ind., which will relieve him from the poverty in which his voluntary illness has left him. While serving as a private in the army in Cuba, Kissinger allowed Doctor Reed to experiment with him to the end of checking yellow fever, which had crippled Central and South America.

TIME STUDIES AS HOTEL CLERK TO PLUNDER GUESTS

Hollander Becomes Favorite as Attendant in Paris While Learning Habits of Patrons.

Paris.—The use of a hotel clerkship as a school for thievery is one of the latest novelties of the underworld of Paris, and it occurred in one of the foremost hotels of this city. The clerk in question was a Hollander, named Remming, who assumed the name of Carolus Beumer. For some time he performed the duties of the clerkship with much efficiency and grace and was a favorite with most of the guests of the hotel. His salary was a generous one, and he received rich "tips" from guests who appreciated his undivided attentions.

All the time, however, he was diligently studying the guests, their ways and manners, so as to be able to judge of their means and to determine whether they had many jewels or other valuables in their possession, and whether they kept these in their trunks or in their rooms or intrusted them to the safe deposit vault of the hotel.

When at last he felt himself able to read human nature, he resigned his clerkship and took to stealing from the guests of hotels. In this he was for a time successful, securing much loot and avoiding arrest. One day lately, however, the occupant of the room which he was robbing returned unexpectedly, and the thief crawled under the bed to hide. He was not quite quick enough, however, to escape the eye of the guest, who summoned the police. A wild chase ensued through the corridors and some of the rooms of the hotel, rivaling the fantastic scenes of a motion picture melodrama, which ended with the capture of the thief as he was hiding behind the draperies in the room of an elderly English woman. A sentence to two years in prison was the epilogue to the play.

Drought Cause of Much

Misery in South Africa

Cape Town.—The Midland cape is suffering from the ravages of the most acute drought experienced in South Africa for many years. Official figures show that at Aberdeen 500 people are on the border line of starvation, while at Willowmore 400 families are destitute.

Relief organizations have been compelled to close down owing to lack of funds. Stock in the Karroo has been dying off by hundreds and that which remains is wasting away, the Karroo being parched, not a vestige of green to be seen for dozens of miles.

Farms are being deserted, the destitute families either going on trek in search of pasture, or deserting their farms and stock and trying their luck in the diamond diggings, already overcrowded. At Port Elizabeth a relief fund has been organized and although the sum collected has now reached £1,140, this is totally inadequate to cope with the widespread destitution. In some districts bitterly cold weather has been experienced and this has added to the sufferings and has further taken toll of the starving stock.

On the Karroo carcasses of sheep, goats, cattle and denkeys can be seen in profusion. The drought has ruined hundreds of acres of crops and farmers formerly prosperous are now on the verge of ruin, their employees dismissed and their lands dried-up wastes.

Turns Honey to Gold, at Least Fakir Says So

Bombay, India.—A pseudo "holy man" is engaging the attention of the Bombay police. The simple faith of the Indian native enables him to reap a rich harvest.

Posing as a religious mendicant endowed with the gift of magic he claims to have been given power by the god of good fortune that enables him to turn honey into gold.

Visiting native houses, he induces the women to make a present of their jewelry to the goddess, and in return presents them with a pot of honey. This pot, he tells them, must be placed under the doorstep and after two days it would be found that the honey would be turned to gold, and a top of the gold the family jewelry, turned by the goddess.

NEW LIMITED TRACTION CAR COMES TO TOWN

Scioto Valley Places Second Limited Car on This Division.

No. 110, came to this city from Columbus Saturday morning in a new coat of paint. The car looks spic and span and is all dolled up with new furnishings.

The interior is finished in cherry, with green overstuffed leather chairs and a green Axminster brussels runner is spread thru the aisle of the car. Like the other limited, there is only one way of egress or ingress. Of course, the car has a beveled plate glass rear door, which is used as an observation window, which in an emergency may be thrown open as an exit.

The car also has a separate compartment for smokers which is curtained off with portieres. The lavatory is at the far end of the car near the smoking department.

All in all, the car is quite an improvement over the first edition of the company's limited cars. Just over the rear end of the car is an awning, which looks nifty, but it won't stay clean very long going thru the dirty smoky atmosphere of the Capital City.

When the car approaches the station or a street, you hear the tinkle of a bell and this is rung by the driver. It sounds little the little bells that hang on Pagoda in the land of the Dragoon.

The little extra fare you have to pay to ride on the Traction company's new Pullman limited is cheerfully given as they are much more comfortable and land you in Columbus or Chillicothe ahead of the regular schedule.

On Hard Work

The man who has the best time during his idle hours is the man who worked the hardest during his working hours. Hard work is a wonderful thing.—Atchison Globe.

Two-Piece Outfit for Summer Wear

In Lines and Combinations That Bring New Fashion Into Limelight.

The two-piece dress that dominates the mode so distinctly, merely follows up its popularity of last year. It comes, however, in lines and combinations that are new and so serves to establish a new mode.

Frocks in two-pieces are now to be found in the jumper fashion, of course, but are also seen in bolero effects, opened jackets with vestees and in contrasting fabrics of varied colors.

Skirts in the two-piece mode are permitted a wide choice in their designs. They may be rather circular, giving a pronounced flare; they may be straight with but one plait to relieve the severity; they may be entirely plaited in side or accordion plaits; they may be of a plain yoke or peplum and be plaited in uneven numbers below or be cut so as to flare and give an uneven hemline.

Blouses, too, have variety. They are bloused or straight; they are tailored or lavishly trimmed; they are sheer in fabric or heavy. They have bows at shoulders, bows at the waist, flying scarfs, low collars, high collars, tucks, shirtings or plain lines. The blouse and skirt may vary in shades as well as fabric. Sometimes

Of course there are dresses in two-pieces which are of one color and one fabric and it is such a frock that Natli Barr, "movie" star, wears in "Diamonds in the Rough."

Laces and Chiffons in Animated Designs

Every woman loves a fluttery sort of frock for warm weather festivities. The success of scalloped and irregular chiffons has been amazing. Now come laces and more chiffons in all sorts of "animated" designs. This term has been used to distinguish such frocks as are at their best in action, as against dresses characterized by "statue" draperies.

It seemed to some who attended the Paris midsummer opening that there was a tendency toward what some one described as "neater evening dresses." "Plainer," or even "more severe," might be a better way of expressing it. Chanel started the minds of makers of smart clothes along tailored channels when she added saddle buckles and tailored-looking belts and buttons to chiffon and lace dresses intended for the more frivolous moments of life. Now one finds lace being used in one and two-piece models that are almost severe in effect, and that, like so many other models, are belted, even buckled.

"Women of importance," as some tactful soul has called the dowagers, or perhaps the matrons, are partial to soft lines. Severely tailored things belong to youth, mature figures being best concealed under graceful draperies. Hence the continuance in favor of uneven hems achieved by petals or pointed panels, of plaits, and of draperies, especially those which occur at either the side or front.

Light-Weight Sweaters Made of Shaggy Wool

Angora wool is one of the important innovations of French summer styles, as compared with spring fashions. Light-weight sweaters are made of the shaggy wool, and some of the prettiest embroidery on sports things is worked in angora wool thread. Embroidered dots are the usual form, but angora wool band embroidery and angora cross-stitch are also seen.

Worth has a pretty rose-colored angora sweater with a white zigzag design woven in it and white dots embroidered in the angles. A plaited skirt of rose crepe de chine goes with it.

AMUSEMENTS

"Rich Men's Sons," the Columbia drama that opened at the Met theater last night, easily takes rank as good entertainment, providing as it does an abundance of laughs and thrills in a swiftly moving story of youthful romance and daring.

The plot is pleasingly simple and is presented in a convincing manner under the competent direction of Ralph Graves, who in this production makes his commendable debut as a megaphone wielder and is a featured player as well.

A railroad president's waster son finds himself disowned by his father and arrested for the theft of a society girl's valuable vanity case—which he did not take—all in the same day. He is brought before the girl, who is in charge of her father's steel mill, and for punishment is put to work as an office boy to earn the money value of the lost vanity.

Financial as well as labor troubles confront the girl, and she is in danger of losing the mill. The only help lies in a contract with the railroad president, which he will not sign.

When things look blackest, the boy wakes up. How he gets the necessary signature, and saves the day for the mill and the girl and girl for him self, makes for a good measure of genuinely dramatic situations.

An exciting race between the boy's high powered speed car and the father's lightning express train provides a particularly thrilling bit.

Petite Shirley Mason handles the role of the young society girl who awakens the boy's real self, with engaging sincerity, while Ralph Graves makes the most of his opportunities as the boy. George Fawcett plays the railroad magnate in his own accomplished fashion; Robert Cain is equally easy as the smooth villain. The capable cast is completed by Frances Raymond as the aristocratic mother; Scott Seaton as the steel man; Walter James, a burly mill worker and Johnny Fox an ingenious office boy.

THE MIGHTY MITES.

The mighty mites are mighty bitey: Sometimes they make one very flighty!

They crawl and creep and sting so deep,

No one for them can get much sleep. Mosquitoes and the chiggers, too, They arragvate me thru and thru. The grass is full of bugs and midgets Which saw and gnaw me into fidgets I wonder and I often dream What place these things have in scheme.

If I'd been Noah on the Ark, No itchy thing would've rode that bark;

Coal oil, smoke and insect paste, Those mighty mites would had to taste!

College "Wranglers"

Wrangler, literally a disputant in the colleges of Cambridge university. England, is a term now applied to a student who attains a place in the first-class in mathematics at that university. The head wrangler used to be known as the "senior wrangler," but that distinction is now at an end, as the names are no longer arranged in the order of merit.

Mexico Has Pyramid

There is a pyramid near Puebla, Mex., that is comparable to the pyramids of Egypt, according to Liberty. It was erected by the Toltec Indians, is more than 200 feet high, and has a base line of 1,000 feet. Cheops, largest of the Egyptian pyramids, has a base line of 750 feet and is 400 feet high.

DIVORCES ARE ON INCREASE

Commerce Department Reports Court Separations Gain 2.3 Per Cent In Year.

Little Dan Cupid works hard but he has the satisfaction of knowing he is getting results. According to reports of the department of commerce at Washington, inroads on his labors continue to grow in the divorce courts, but not as fast as the direct results of his escapades.

In 1926 there were 54,632 marriages in Ohio as compared with 52,317 in 1925, an increase of 4.5 per cent. During the same period 13,976 divorces were granted as compared with 13,666 in 1925, an increase of 2.3 per cent.

The estimated population of Ohio on July 1, 1926, was 6,600,000, and 6,470,000 on the same date in 1925. On the basis of these estimates the number of marriages per 1,000 population was 8.3 per cent in 1926 and 8.1 per cent in 1925. Divorce percentages were 2.12 in 1926 as against 2.11 in 1925.

Cuyahoga county led with 11,000 marriages recorded and Morgan was last with only 79. Population has its effect on the number, of course, but divorces were fewest in Monroe county, where only six were recorded in 1926.

Your Engine Is No Exception.

As it grows older it will wear. As it wears it needs a new lubrication diagnosis. Give it an oil of more body. Sinclair provides in the line of Sinclair Opaline Motor Oils several different grades of oils to serve the various clearances and degrees of wear encountered in all engines. Why not drive in and consult the Sinclair Recommendation Index, perhaps there is a grade of Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil better for your engine than the one you are now using.

GIANT LOBSTER CAPTURED OFF LONG ISLAND COAST

Monster's Size Is Recorded as 36 by 48 inches and Gross Tonnage Placed at 24½ Pounds.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The horrors that might have happened along the coast this summer are beyond words! Stop and think, citizens, of what might have occurred had that lobster gone 'way inshore at Long Beach as he no doubt intended! Or if he had changed his course and put in at Rockaway or come down to Coney Island!

Of course you don't know what we are talking about. But we were so stunned at considering the possibilities in that lobster we forgot all about telling you. Here's the idea: They caught a lobster the other day off Long Beach and the thing weighed 24½ pounds.

So now you see! Gosh, suppose that beast, or whatever it is you call a lobster, had gone inshore and attached himself to the left "pinkie" toe of one of Long Beach's bathing beauties. Or suppose he had butted head-on into the nonresisting paunch of a New York girl goods man out for a day's swimming.

Or suppose he'd gone down to Rockaway and adhered to the foot of a stout matron from the Bronx. Or had pressed himself lovingly against the quivering sides of a Flatbush flapper.

Or suppose he'd slipped into Coney Island and got himself mixed up with a picnic party. Or had meandered unthinkingly into a young man from Brownsville teaching a young lady from Canarsie how to swim.

Suppose any of these things, and then be glad he was caught.

The good ship Rita, parentage unknown, brought him into Sheepshead bay late at night. The crustacean—you see we knew what he was all the time—was alive then, but he's died since. Anyway, he's on exhibition at an Emmons avenue shop, and if you don't believe there is such a thing go see him.

He weighs, as we have said, 24½ pounds. He was twenty years old when he passed away. He is 3 feet long. His beam, or width, is 48 inches. Wouldn't you hate to meet that lobster in the dark?

Aerial "Locomotives" May Be Used in Near Future

Berlin.—Aerial freight and passenger trains consisting of an aerial "locomotive" towing six or more aerial "cars" may become commonplace in the near future.

Successful experiments with trailers have already been made in Germany and plans are being laid for more extended tests in the near future. These will probably be conducted by Antonius Raab, the German pilot who recently set out from the aerodrome at Cassel trailing a passenger-carrying glider in his wake, and flew over Darmstadt, Karlsruhe and Frankfurt demonstrating the practicability of towing gliders. At Frankfurt the occupant of the glider loosened the towing catch, and, sailing down independently from the powered machine, made a perfect landing.

Since this test Aviator Ferdinand Schultz at Rossitten made a new world's record in a motorless glider by remaining aloft 14 hours 8 minutes, a performance that, according to aviation experts, brings still nearer the day when people will be traveling about Europe and America in real aerial trains.

Fairy Flowers Are Fad Among Women in London

London.—Finding a fairy in flowers is the latest fad of the fashionable woman, and a most charming fad it is. At a West end restaurant a fair-haired woman in a leaf-green dress displayed an example of the new mode. On her right shoulder she wore a silken mauve orchid, but it wasn't an ordinary orchid at all. In the flower's center was a golden-haired fairy, and the stem was the fairy's slim green-clad limbs.

Another example of this fashion was displayed in a pink chiffon frock worn by an American girl at Covent Garden recently at the premiere of "Turandot." On either side of her swathed waistband was a flat flower of palest pink velvet; in the flowers' centers were flat silken heads of fairy dolls with crisp curling golden hair resembling stamens.

Gold in Hens' CropsLeads to Mine Find

Montreal, Que.—An item from Charlottetown, P. E. I., announces a discovery of gold on the farm of Jack Matheson, a returned soldier. Extraction of pellets of pure gold from the crop of his poultry gave Matheson a clue to the presence of rich minerals on his place. He established that the poultry had been eating some of the deposit from an old well excavation and determined to dig in that vicinity. At a depth of some 38 feet he struck a rock formation similar to that which carried the gold found in the crops of his chickens, and since then he has himself dug up some nuggets.

HARRY'S BOUQUET
CONTAINS A BRICK

Edinburgh, Scotland, July 28.—Sir Harry Lauder's birthplace honored the comedian today with the freedom of the city, but dissenters in the town council gave the little Scot a sharp dig in the ribs.

The freedom of the city was proposed in recognition of Sir Harry's war services, his efforts in raising funds for war charities, his labors to cement the ties of kinship between the mother country and the dominions and his pre-eminence as an exponent of Scottish song and humor. Opposition was voiced by Councilman Gilzen, Laborite, who said Lauder presented to audiences a type of Scotsman not found in the heavens above, on the earth beneath or in the waters under the earth. Councilman Crawford said no man had done more to bring Scottish songs into contempt than had Lauder. He asserted Sir Harry was a Tory propagandist who had denounced trade unions.

WHOLE CITY MADE
POWERLESS BY BEE

Ottawa, July 28.—A honey bee today was the direct cause of Ottawa being without electric power for a time and injury to six persons. The bee winged its way into the rear seat of an automobile and so distracted the attention of the driver that control of the machine was lost and the car crashed into a power pole, and snapped it off at its base. The pole sustained wires carrying 33,000 volts of electricity. When it broke, it carried the wire down with it and broke them, leaving Ottawa temporarily without light and power. Anthony Weger, of Delphos, his wife, two children, John Schafner, a nephew, and Frank Weger, suffered lacerations and bruises in the accident.

The Four Things That Matter.

There are four qualities we look for in a motor oil:

1. It must give perfect lubrication.
2. It must leave the engine in clean condition.
3. It must be economical to use.

On these four counts we have chosen Sinclair Opaline Motor Oils and we recommend them to our customers.

The Interrupted Proposal

By AD SCHUSTER

(Copyright.)

"I WILL marry the one who first proposes."

Leona Murray settled the problem of two suitors, of impecunious youth and affluent middle age, with this decision. For Fred Dashin, her young admirer, she held a mixed feeling of resentment and admiration. Had he not been so bashful he might have won long ago and there would have been no perplexing question. As to Aylott Plam, well, he could provide a good home, was not much over forty, and was good looking.

Perhaps if she had not been influenced by her parents the girl would have accepted neither, or it might have been she would have discouraged Aylott. For weeks she had received the attentions of both, hoping that Fred would summon sufficient courage to say the words which would rescue her from Aylott and the plans of a father and mother. And now, rendered desperate, she was determined to say "yes" to the first who asked.

Something of the seriousness of the situation may have occurred to Fred Dashin for he tried bravely to put the question. Obstinate Leona refused to help. She would never marry a coward, she told herself. If she were worth having she was worth the asking. So Fred stammered, ran his hand around his collar, and talked of the prospects for business with the election out of the way.

When he left he took home with him the declaration he should have made. He even took it to his office and voiced it, bravely this time, into a dictaphone. With the windows closed and the keyholes locked he spoke the tender words of love putting into them, unconsciously, the tones and the tricks of a man dictating a letter.

"Leona," he started, "there is a matter of importance I would like to, ahem, call to your attention. It had occurred to me, er—hmm—will you marry me?" As it struck him there was an anonymous quality about the declaration and she might not be able to recognize the voice he added: "This is Fred Dashin speaking."

The rest would be simple. Leona's father still owned one of the old-fashioned talking machines designed for cylindrical records. He would send this one to the girl, count upon her playing it alone, for the father detested music, and await his answer. In this way, he reflected he would get in a proposal before the next evening when Aylott would call on Leona and it was just possible that every moment would count.

Leona received the package and recognizing the writing as Fred's refused to honor the gift with a trial. He had had his opportunity, she decided, and passed it by. Now she would give Aylott the chance and Aylott was romantic and eager. With the least encouragement he would propose, she would accept, and Fred Dashin could go through life with a broken heart. Strangely, the idea seemed to comfort the girl.

Aylott Plam, dressed in his best, expressed determination in every line when he called that evening. His long hair which gave a poetic appearance was glossed with a marvelous preparation which he hitherto held in contempt.

"Leona," he said, "this is a marvelous evening. The moon was made for poetry and love. It is the perfect opportunity." And Aylott paused to give the girl the full benefits of an adoring gaze.

The proposal was coming. She would accept him. Leona knew there was no backing out now, and that the plans she had cherished were about to be killed forever. Aylott's glance fell upon the talking machine and a new thought came.

"Place a record there," he said. "Music, and the moon, and a beautiful girl... an evening which may be remembered all of our lives."

The girl, wishing desperately that a storm would break to carry her, Aylott, and the house away that this proposal might be averted, fitted the cylinder to the machine. She started at the sound of Fred's voice, but her astonishment was as nothing compared to that of Aylott.

"Shut it off! Shut it off! That's not music."

It may be said for Aylott that he persisted in spite of the embarrassing interruption. Leona stopped him.

"I cannot marry you, Aylott," she said, "because I have accepted another."

SPOT LIGHT TO BE THROWN ON MERGER

GENERAL MOTORS, DUPONTS AND UNITED STATES STEEL

Buying of the Duponts de Nemours Powder Company of U. S. Steel Stock Frowned Upon By New Member of U. S. Trade Commission Who Orders Probe Be Made of Relationship of Financial Giants.

A sweeping inquiry into the relationships between the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., the General Motors Corporation and the U. S. Steel Corporation was ordered Friday at Washington by the federal trade commission.

The investigation will be conducted by the chief economist and will go directly to the question of the probable economic consequences of a community of interests among the three largest industrial corporations in the United States.

Upon the report of the economist will depend future action by the commission. The move of the commission, which came wholly unexpectedly, was upon motion of Commissioner A. F. Myers, the newest member of the trade regulatory body.

In its resolution directing the inquiry, the commission called attention to the published financial reports of the du Pont company showing that it had a large investment in the stock of the General Motors Corporation.

The resolution also recited that it had been currently reported in the press that the du Pont company recently had acquired a large holding in the capital stock of the Steel Corporation with the expectation of having a number of directors in that organization as it now has in General Motors.

The establishment of a community of interest among these three corporations was declared to be "a matter of public concern." The commission then called attention to its authority of law to inquire into the organization, business conduct, practices and management of corporations generally.

This inquiry promises to be the most extensive the commission has conducted since it investigated the "big five" meat packers several years ago by direction of President Wilson.

The resolution adopted by the commission follows:

"Whereas, it appears from published financial reports of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., that it has a large investment in the stock of the General Motors Corporation, and

"Whereas, it is currently reported in the press that the du Pont company has recently acquired in the capital stock of the U. S. Steel Corporation, that it expects to have a number of directors representing its interests elected to the board of the latter company and in other ways to develop a close corporate connection among them and

"Whereas, the establishment of a community of interests among these three corporations, which are reputed to be among the largest industrial corporations in this country, is a matter of public concern, and

"Resolved, That the chief economist of this commission be directed to cause an inquiry to be made into the relationships, direct or indirect among the U. S. Steel Corporation, the General Motors Co., and the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., tending to bring them or any other important industrial corporation under a common ownership, control of manage-

In the absence of Pierre S. du Pont president, and other officials of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., at Wilmington, Delaware, the only statement obtainable regarding the federal trade commission's inquiry into the relationship between the du Pont General Motors, and U. S. Steel corporations, was issued by the publicity department. It read:

"Officials of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., said Friday they knew nothing of the proposed investigation by the federal trade commission of the company's holdings in General Motors and U. S. Steel. The officials further said, knowing nothing about it, they had nothing to say."

LAW AND ORDER LEADER HELD ON LIQUOR CHARGE.

Burt H. White, 34, president of the Law and Order League, was arrested Friday afternoon at Toledo on a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law.

White is said by federal prohibition officers to have been implicated by two alleged bootleggers arrested Thursday night as the intended purchaser of a case of beer and a quart of supposed whisky found in their possession.

The Law and Order League, under the direction of White, had just announced a campaign to attempt to rid Toledo of places conducting illegal business, such as disorderly houses, gambling and bootlegging places.

WOMEN HELD CONVENTION IN OAKLAND

Business Woman Has Become Strong Factor in the Present Day Life.

Women, perhaps, have reason to congratulate themselves upon the measure of their advancement in America, during the last quarter century at least.

The national convention of Business and Professional Women's clubs recently met in Oakland, California. There were 2,000 delegates present. It is to be doubted that the majority of complacent masculinity appreciate this remarkable showing of feminine strength. They will be compelled to realize it, however, for it is here, and daily becomes more evident.

The business and professional woman has become a strong factor in the fabric of present day civilization. She is to be found in every honorable walk of life open to men. And she is maintaining herself in these walks.

Two thousand delegates should represent the best selected personalities from wide and varied groups of women in business and the professions. What then of the grand army of followers, whose representatives they are?

The convention at Oakland should open the eyes of the doubting — and possibly lagging — Thomases, who may have been indulged the patriarchal belief that a woman's place exclusively is in the home—her divine mission, the bearing of children.

Women will continue to be home-makers and child-bearers. They are horizons of beauty and usefulness and aspiration in her comprehension today that never bounded the lives of the millions of women who moved within the circumscribed circles of the feminine sphere in the old dead centuries.

The day has passed—and the Oakland convention seems clearly to indicate the fact—when the talents and industry of women can be discounted by the fact of her sex.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

STOUTSVILLE CAMPMEETING

The climax of the Stoutsville camp meeting will be reached Sunday when large crowds are expected to come and hear J. Balmer Showers, assistant editor of the Religious Telescope.

Dr. Showers has a wonderful, magnetic personality and it will be well worth your while to plan to come and hear him as he is a well known orator.

TRIPPED ON WIRE.

Mrs. George McGinness, of East Ohio street, tripped Friday afternoon near her home on a piece of wire and was thrown headlong. Her face and arms were badly skinned.

WESTERN UNION TIME.

Western Union-Naval observatory time signals are transmitted daily to some 120,000 subscribers, over approximately 250,000 miles of wire, connecting 25,000 Western Union offices, and the stations of some 200 railway systems. This, of course, is but a fraction of the company's total wire mileage, as there are many wires between the more important points, but it is enough to "hook up" the entire country.

By means of these electric signals the true time as computed by the United States naval observatory, is recorded on master clocks in Western Union offices, and from these the clocks of individual subscribers are corrected automatically every hour. Many hundreds of miles of local circuits are necessary in the larger cities to connect subscribers' clock with the main office. In New York, for example, there are more than 1,500 miles of local clock circuits.

ELKS' NEW RULER

BODY OF FIRST NATIONAL BANK CASHIER FOUND

Body of Arthur Harry, Missing Wellston Man Found at Chillicothe.

A sad and gruesome sequel developed Thursday night to the exclusive story printed nine weeks ago by The Gazette telling that Arthur Harry, 45, cashier of the First National bank at Wellston, who had been a patient at a sanitarium at Cincinnati, and had disappeared from that institution, had, shortly after his disappearance, spent a night at the Warner hotel here sitting all night in the lobby and then disappeared again, this last two or three weeks ago.

Following the clue to the missing cashier's presence in this vicinity, a systematic search of the banks of the Scioto river starting at the Bridge street bridge was begun yesterday morning and the searchers were rewarded for their labors, last night, by the discovery of the badly decomposed body of Arthur Harry on the east bank of the river near Edgewater, some six miles southeast of Chillicothe.

The body was identified by Mrs. Harry, the missing cashier's wife, and by his brother-in-law, J. C. Gooding, a lumber dealer of Wellston.

The body was found by John Rupert and an assistant who had been employed by Harry's relatives to make the search.

Immediately on report of the finding of the body, Deputy Sheriff Arthur Crago and Tom Ware, Jesse Jacobs and Edgar Ward, with the Ware ambulance, hurried down to the scene, Deputy Crago at the same time telephoning for Coroner Albert Frey. The body was taken at once to Ware's.

The body was found on the north river bank face down, as it was reported three clairvoyants had predicted it would be.

A belt buckle, gold crowned tooth, shoes and trousers made the identification of the body complete.

Prior to rendering an official verdict as to the cause of death, Coroner Frey said that Harry had either deliberately drowned himself, or had fallen from, or been knocked by a train from the railroad bridge over the Scioto.

Mr. Harry was born in Jackson county, being a son of Daniel J. Harry. He was well known and popular among the bankers of this section of Ohio, being also a Mason, an Elk and a Rotarian. Two children, a daughter, Patricia, and a son, Arthur Harry Jr., survive him.

The body was taken to Wellston. "Accidental drowning" was Coroner Frey's official verdict.—Scioto Gazette.

The decorations were white and yellow and this color scheme was carried out in the birthday cake which was decorated with 25 yellow illuminated candles. The guests enjoyed dancing on the cement floor of the garage which was illuminated for the occasion. A Victrola furnished the music. Mr. and Mrs. Austin Black, of Columbus and Mr. Roy Pifer, of Washington C. H., were out of town guests.

MILLIONS

Are Spent In the United States For Greeting Cards.

Few persons realize the magnitude of the industry that supplies the American people with its greeting cards, points out J. P. McEvoy in an article in this week's Liberty. "The greeting-card industry," he explains, "in spite of its phenomenal growth and undeniable importance, still exists in the popular mind as 'something to do with post cards.' "But in one year," he continues, "more than $60,000,000 was spent for greeting cards in this country. One company alone lists more than 250 varieties of cards. And for the cards issued last year 27,842 verses were written. "The greeting-card industry skims the cream of the best paper mills in this country, and is the largest importer of the finest handmade papers from all over the world. It is the greeting-card industry that has raised the standard of American printing and plate-making until they no longer need bow even to Leipzig and Munich traditions."

1927 CORN CROP LOWEST SINCE 1901

Washington, July 28.—The 1927 corn crop, estimated at 2,275,000,000 bushels, will be the lowest produced in the United States in 26 years. "This year's crop," government officials say, "is unusually late. Much of it still is under cultivation, whereas under normal conditions it should have been laid by. "Corn responds to warm weather, and this season has been cool and wet. Records of the past 36 years indicate that the amount of rainfall is the dominant factor governing corn yield. "The nation produced 2,645,000,000 bushels last year.

HORSE BEATS TRAIN

Newark, O., July 28.—(U.P.)—Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, speaking at a centennial celebration of the Newark Division Veterans' Association today, told of the first test of a steam locomotive on the B. & O. lines. The B. & O. was chartered in 1827 and started operation with horsepower trains in 1828. It was not until 1830 that steam locomotive was tested. It was called upon to race a horse-drawn train along the road's double track from Baltimore to Ellicott Mills, 14 miles. The horse won.

When the Old Engine Lacks Pep
When you feel the lack of full compression in the motor of your car—you need to change to a heavier grade of Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil. As cars add mileage, engines wear. Wear in the cylinders must be corrected with heavier oil to seal the increased clearance, unless the clearances are so great that you should have the rings refitted or new pistons. Jim Lathbury's Ghost

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

"BUT I do not love you, Henry," protested Elsie Freeman, drawing back from Henry Flagg's nearness. "I thought that you understood that after Jim's death I could never care for any man in that way." Henry Flagg frowned darkly. "Elsie," he said patiently, "you and Jim were only engaged to be married." "I am afraid, Henry, that I could not be happy unless I truly loved you," said the girl calmly. "Why can't you love me?" he demanded furiously—"Jim Lathbury was my own cousin, and people said we were enough alike to be twins—so why can't you care for me—as well as you did for him?" Elsie stared at him pityingly. She had never cared much for Henry, but because he was Jim's cousin and they had been in the war together, she did try to be nice to him, for Jim's sake. "Don't you really believe that Jim was killed?" he asked bluntly. Elsie paled. "Why, I have doubted it—did you?" "No—of course I believe it—haven't I succeeded to his estate? I can't help believing it, Elsie," he went on in a low, intense tone, "because ever since I have been living at Lathbury house, I have been haunted by Jim's ghost!" Elsie stared at him with wide open blue eyes. Then, the lids suddenly drooping, she slipped from her chair to the floor, unconscious. Henry rang for a maid. "You better get her to bed, Minna," said Henry. Minna brought some tea, and Elsie picked up a magazine, but always between her eyes and the printed page appeared the brave, handsome face of her lover, Jim Lathbury, who had been an aviator during the World War. Jim had been reported killed, but his body was never recovered. Five years had passed since that time, and still Elsie, who had been his promised wife, mourned him, and the property went to Henry Flagg, Mr. Lathbury's nearest relative, a cousin. That evening Henry came to inquire about Elsie. "Henry," she said, "did you really mean what you said about seeing Jim's ghost at the house?" "Yes," he said. "I believe you," she said frankly. "And I want to see it, too, Henry—say tomorrow night." "Very well—of course you know it will not be until midnight." She nodded. "I will bring Minna with me—mother is going to New York for a couple of days with father."

The next night at eleven o'clock Elsie drove over to Lathbury house while Minna shivered inside the little car. It was a bright starry night, and the dewy fragrance of many flowers came from the big gardens that would have been Elsie's if she and Jim had been married. Elsie thought she saw a man's figure down in the rose garden, and she decided that she would speak to Henry about it, but when they reached the front door, there Henry was waiting. He hurried them up to the picture gallery. Elsie tossed her coat and hat on a seat and sank down in the deep chair. She confided to Minna the reason why she had come, and Minna sat down in a remote corner to wait.

About five minutes to twelve a servant summoned Henry to the telephone, and with a promise to Elsie to return at once, Henry disappeared. Elsie was thankful to be alone for if her lost lover was to be there, even in spirit, she wanted to be alone. Then, suddenly, Jim Lathbury was there! Elsie sat stunned, noting his khaki uniform, muddy and wet, saw Jim's despairing face, white under the aviator's close hood. Then, the lights dimming to a mere grayness, he vanished, and then the lights were on again, and Henry stood beside her holding her hand in his cold one. "You saw him, dear?" he whispered hoarsely. "Yes," wailed the girl, "and before I could speak to him, Jim had gone away—Oh, Jim, Jim, Jim!" and the girl tore herself away and Minna's strong arms were around her and held her up. Then there was a confusion, for a man suddenly dashed into the gallery and knocked Henry to the floor where he remained too inert to arise. Elsie, giving one glance at the stranger, found it was no stranger at all—it was Jim Lathbury, her own true love in the flesh. "It is Mr. Jim! The real Mr. Jim!" exclaimed Minna. But Elsie knew by the warm kisses that covered her face, that at last her belief in Jim being alive was vindicated. He whispered a story of being wounded, captured, and of his not knowing even his own name or identity. He had remained in Germany working as a farmhand all these years, until a great doctor saw him, recognized him and effected a cure. He had returned to find his parents dead and his estate in the hands of his cousin. Tonight he had just arrived when Elsie saw him in the rose garden, and he had come into the house—it was Elsie's scream of "Jim—Jim—Jim!" that had brought him into action. So the ghost of Henry's imagination materialized and claimed his promised wife.

SHAKE UP DRY UNITS

To Drop Agents In Buffalo and New York.

Washington, July 28.—(U.P.)—Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Doran has ordered a general shakeup of the Buffalo and New York City dry offices. Doran said several prohibition agents in each of the districts would be asked to resign. He requested Maurice Campbell, administrator at New York and

Andrew McCampbell, Buffalo administrator, to prepare reports recommending which agents should be dropped. The shakeup, Doran believes, will aid in clearing up "the two most disturbing situations" in the prohibition organization.

Cretonnes Are in Fashion Picture

Women of Paris Favor Gay-
ly Flowered Material for Summer Wear.

Beach and sports dresses of brightly flowered cretonne are to be found in the wardrobes of French women preparing to take themselves and their families to resorts for the hot months.
French manufacturers, says a Paris fashion writer in the Kansas City Star, even put many washable cre-tonnes on the market.

Mother and children alike wear the inexpensive, cheerful frocks. One of the new ideas of the season for these cretonne dresses is the concealed belt.
It may be an elastic run inside the blouse, brought out at one side only to tie in bow ends of a color contrasting with the cretonne.

Midseason showings at the biggest fashion houses indicate no change in the length of skirts.

Daytime dresses still hover about the knees and evening dresses are only a little longer. Certain dressmakers, who in the spring made an effort to lengthen skirts, have abandoned the movement and made their midseason frocks conform to the accepted length. It may be expected, however, that the autumn will see the effort renewed by such houses as Poiret and Vionnet, both champions of a longer skirt.

At the beginning of the season designers tried to lure women away from floral printed silks. Each day now shows an increasing number of new and fascinating silks on the market, and summer models of them at the dressmaking shops. The flowered silks resemble those of last season more closely now than they did earlier in the spring when the geometrical print was promising to sweep the garden designs out of the field.

The markets and fairs which are in almost continuous session in Paris are visited occasionally by smartly dressed women who are looking for old buttons of value among the rubbish of the counters. Antique silver, gold and brass buttons are prized trimmings for the afternoon dresses and few dressmaking houses supply the real thing.

With patience buttons of value may be found and bought for very small sums. Among them are old amber and turquoise fastenings, which are much coveted.

One of the new dancing dresses recently designed by Chantal is of sand colored georgette crepe with inset godets in the skirt of two tones of orange. On the shoulder of the dress is an arrangement of taffeta tulips in vivid shades, one of the flowers hanging head downward to a point as low as the hips.

If one scarf around the neck is good style, three are better, argue some young Parisians. The three-cornered scarf knotted at the side has for a long time been a standard article for sports wear in Paris.

Now the triple scarf idea, with contrasting colors, is an effort to vary the old theme. Harmonious pastel shades are chosen, no two of which are worn in the same manner. There may be one knot in front, one in back and another on the side.

The advance fall showings by important Paris dressmakers forecast popularity for brown in the ruddy and darker tones this autumn and several houses select it as the medium for showing their new tailor-mades.

At Worth's brown is used, but terra cotta is stressed. Patou also has a few tailor-mades in a deep brown that is almost purple. Bernard, who shows several tailored suits, also specializes in brown.

Spot cash isn't always spotless cash.

The intolerant man is the real pedant.—Richter.In all thy actions think God sees thee.—Quarles.Sooner or later the chronic kicker gets his foot in it.Lots of men fall in love with the figure of an heiress.Gossip is a habit like lying. Some are predisposed to it.Of course you earn an enormous salary, but do you get it?The jealous man poisons his own banquet, and then eats it.Impatience dries the blood sooner than age or sorrow.—Cleon.It is so much easier to forget a favor than it is to forgive an injury.A man of mystery can be interesting; but, usually, he doesn't like it.If one's relatives live 800 miles away he can brag more about them.The father of one baby is usually twice as happy as the father of twins.Too many people neglect their plain duties for something more attractive.Most of the things you lose you find again when you put on an old suit.That day is passed when a gorgeous scarfpin made a stunning impression.Anyone who pans his friends behind their backs, doesn't deserve to have any.Defect in a great facility with Latin is that you have so few chances to exhibit it.The important event in many a man's life is an accident—the accident of birth.A man may not have a word to say against athletics, but only wish that he enjoyed them.BOY SCOUTS ARE PRAISED
BY AVIATOR*Commander Byrd Says He Would Not Fear to Have Lads With Him on Trip.Commander Richard E. Byrd, eminent hero of super-air exploration and scientific adventure, is not so far from boyhood as to have lost the glamour of its aspirations and its limitless dreams; indeed, he is very close to the dauntless realm of youth.
In a greeting to members of the Boy Scouts of the world, directly addressing the Boy Scouts organization of France, he declared:"I am tremendously interested in your movement, and want to send greetings from the Boy Scouts of America. Scouts get the kind of training that makes good aviators and great fellows for aviation. I would not hesitate to take with me on an Arctic flight a boy who had made a good Scout."Throughout the world this message will thrill the souls of members of this wonderful organization in every country bright, brave lads will say:
"Commander Byrd says we are worthy—that he would not fear to have one of us for companion in high est adventurous achievement. Hurrah for Byrd."Yes, the commander understands boys. By this message, with its essence of implied comradeship intimacy, he has inspired hundreds of thousands of the finest lads in the world to adhere to the practices and ideals of an organization which labors to make men and patriots. Moreover, he thus confounds the preachings of those pacifists who rail at the Boy Scouts organization as an agency in support of militarism. The praise of Commander Byrd in this instance is of immeasurable value to the per-tuituity of a rational, progressive civilization. — Cincinnati Enquirer.NEWS ABOUT

Shortly afterwards his wife found private, crippled from the ravages of yellow fever when he served as a living laboratory in 1900 for Dr. Walter Reed, who was seeking to trace the origin of the disease, received a reward for his heroism recently.

Through a committee appointed by the American Association for Medical Progress, John R. Kissinger has been deeded a home in Huntington, Ind., which will relieve him from the poverty in which his voluntary illness has left him. While serving as a private in the army in Cuba, Kissinger allowed Doctor Reed to experiment with him to the end of checking yellow fever, which had crippled Central and South America.THIEF STUDIES AS HOTEL CLERK TO PLUNDER GUESTS*Hollander Becomes Favorite as Attendant in Paris While Learning Habits of Patrons.Paris.—The use of a hotel clerkship as a school for thievery is one of the latest novelties of the underworld of Paris, and it occurred in one of the foremost hotels of this city. The clerk in question was a Hollander, named Henning, who assumed the name of Carolus Benner. For some time he performed the duties of the clerkship with much efficiency and grace and was a favorite with most of the guests of the hotel. His salary was a generous one, and he received rich "tips" from guests who appreciated his un-dignified attentions.All the time, however, he was diligently studying the guests, their ways and manners, so as to be able to judge of their means and to determine whether they had many jewels or other valuables in their possession, and whether they kept these in their trunks or in their rooms or entrusted them to the safe deposit vault of the hotel.When at last he felt himself able to read human nature, he resigned his clerkship and took to stealing from the guests of hotels. In this he was for a time successful, securing much loot and avoiding arrest. One day late, however, the occupant of the room which he was robbing returned unexpectedly, and the thief crawled under the bed to hide. He was not quite quick enough, however, to escape the eye of the guest, who summoned the police. A wild chase ensued through the corridors and some of the rooms of the hotel, rivaling the fantastic scenes of a motion picture melodrama, which ended with the capture of the thief as he was hiding behind the draperies in the room of an elderly English woman. A sentence to two years in prison was the epilogue to the play.Drought Cause of Much*Misery in South AfricaCape Town.—The Midland cape is suffering from the ravages of the most acute drought experienced in South Africa for many years. Official figures show that at Aberdeen 500 people are on the border line of starvation, while at Willowmore 400 families are destitute.Relief organizations have been compelled to close down owing to lack of funds. Stock in the Karroo has been dying off by hundreds and that which remains is wasting away, the Karroo being parched, not a vestige of green to be seen for dozens of miles.Farms are being deserted, the destitute families either going on trek in search of pasture, or deserting their farms and stock and trying their luck in the diamond diggings, already overcrowded. At Port Elizabeth a relief fund has been organized and although the sum collected has now reached £1,140, this is totally inadequate to cope with the widespread destitution. In some districts bitterly cold weather has been experienced and this has added to the sufferings and has further taken toll of the starving stock.On the Karroo carcasses of sheep, goats, cattle and denkeys can be seen in profusion. The drought has ruined hundreds of acres of crops and farmers formerly prosperous are now on the verge of ruin, their employees dismissed and their lands dried-up wastes.Turns Honey to Gold, at Least Fakir Says SoBombay, India.—A pseudo "holy man" is engaging the attention of the Bombay police. The simple faith of the Indian native enables him to reap a rich harvest.Posing as a religious mendicant endowed with the gift of magic he claims to have been given power by the goddess of good fortune that enables him to turn honey into gold.Visiting native houses, he induces the women to make a present of their jewelry to the goddess, and in return presents them with a pot of honey.
This pot, he tells them, must be placed under the doorstep and after two days it would be found that the honey would be turned to gold, and at the top of the gold the family jewelry turned by the goddess.NEW LIMITED TRACTION CAR
COMES TO TOWN*Scioto Valley Places Second Limited Car on This Division.No. 110, came to this city from Columbus Saturday morning in a new coat of paint. The car looks spic and span and is all dolled up with new furnishings.The interior is finished in cherry, with green overstuffed leather chairs and a green Axminster brussels runner is spread thru the aisle of the car. Like the other limited, there is only one way of egress or ingress. Of course, the car has a beveled plate glass rear door, which is used as an observation window, which in an emergency may be thrown open as an exit.The car also has a separate compartment for smokers which is curtained off with portieres. The lavatory is at the far end of the car near the smoking department.All in all, the car is quite an improvement over the first edition of the company's limited cars. Just over the rear end of the car is an awning, which looks nifty, but it won't stay clean very long going thru the dirty smoky atmosphere of the Capital City.When the car approaches the station or a street, you hear the tinkle of a bell and this is rung by the driver. It sounds little the little bells that hang on Pagoda in the land of the Dragon.The little extra fare you have to pay to ride on the Traction comfully given as they are much more

On Hard Work
The man who has the best time during his idle hours is the man who worked the hardest during his working hours. Hard work is a wonderful thing.—Aitchison Globe.

Two-Piece Outfit for Summer Wear

In Lines and Combinations That Bring New Fashion Into Limelight.

The two-piece dress that dominates the mode so distinctly, merely follows up its popularity of last year. It comes, however, in lines and combinations that are new and so serves to establish a new mode.

Frocks in two-pieces are now to be found in the jumper fashion, of course, but are also seen in bolero effects, opened jackets with vestees and in contrasting fabrics of varied colors.

Skirts in the two-piece mode are permitted a wide choice in their designs. They may be rather circular, giving a pronounced flare; they may be straight with but one plait to relieve the severity; they may be entirely plaited in side or accordion plaits; they may be of a plain yoke or peplum and be plaited in uneven numbers below or be cut so as to flare and give an uneven hemline.

Blouses, too, have variety. They are bloused or straight; they are tailored or lavishly trimmed; they are sheer in fabric or heavy. They have bows at shoulders, bows at the waist, flying scarfs, low collars, high collars, tucks, shirings or plain lines.

The blouse and skirt may vary in shades as well as fabric. Sometimes the only connecting link lies in the trimming.

Of course there are dresses in two-pieces which are of one color and one fabric and it is such a frock that Natli Barr, "movie" star, wears in "Diamonds in the Rough."

Laces and Chiffons in Animated Designs

Every woman loves a fluttery sort of frock for warm weather festivities. The success of scalloped and irregular chiffons has been amazing. Now come laces and more chiffons in all sorts of "animated" designs. This term has been used to distinguish such frocks as are at their best in action, as against dresses characterized by "statue" draperies.

It seemed to some who attended the Paris midsummer opening that there was a tendency toward what some one described as "neater evening dresses." "Plainer," or even "more severe," might be a better way of expressing it. Chanel started the minds of makers of smart clothes along tailored channels when she added saddle buckles and tailored-looking belts and buttons to chiffon and lace dresses intended for the more frivolous moments of life. Now one finds lace being used in one and two-piece models that are almost severe in effect, and that, like so many other models, are belted, even buckled.

"Women of importance," as some tactful soul has called the dowagers, or perhaps the matrons, are partial to soft lines. Severely tailored things belong to youth, mature figures being best concealed under graceful draperies. Hence the continuance in favor of uneven hems achieved by petals or pointed panels, of plaits, and of draperies, especially those which occur at either the side or front.

Light-Weight Sweaters Made of Shaggy Wool

Angora wool is one of the important innovations of French summer styles, as compared with spring fashions. Light-weight sweaters are made of the shaggy wool, and some of the prettiest embroidery on sports things is worked in angora wool thread. Embroidered dots are the usual form, but angora wool band embroidery and angora cross-stitch are also seen.

Worth has a pretty rose-colored angora sweater with a white zigzag design woven in it and white dots embroidered in the angles. A plaited skirt of rose crepe de chine goes with it.

"Rich Men's Sons," the Columbia drama that opened at the Met theater last night, easily takes rank as good entertainment, providing as it does an abundance of laughs and thrills in a swiftly moving story of youthful romance and daring.

The plot is pleasantly simple and is presented in a convincing manner under the competent direction of Ralph Graves, who in this production makes his commendable debut as a megaphone welder and is a featured player as well.

A railroad president's waster son finds himself disowned by his father and arrested for the theft of a society girl's valuable vanity case—which he did not take—all in the same day. He is brought before the girl, who is in charge of her father's steel mill, and for punishment is put to work as an office boy to earn the money value of the lost vanity.

Financial as well as labor troubles confront the girl, and she is in danger of losing the mill. The only help lies in a contract with the railroad president, which he will not sign.

When things look blackest, the boy wakes up. How he gets the necessary signature, and saves the day for the mill and the girl and girl for him self, makes for a good measure of genuinely dramatic situations.

An exciting race between the boy's high powered speed car and the father's lightning express train provides a particularly thrilling bit.

Petite Shirley Mason handles the role of the young society girl who awakens the boy's real self, with engaging sincerity, while Ralph Graves makes the most of his opportunities as the boy. George Fawcett plays the railroad magnate in his own accomplished fashion; Robert Cain is equally easy as the smooth villain. The capable cast is completed by Frances Raymond as the aristocratic mother; Scott Seaton as the steel man; Walter James, a burly mill worker and Johnny Fox an ingenious office boy.

THE MIGHTY MITES.
The mighty mites are mighty bitey: Sometimes they make one very flighty!
They crawl and creep and sting so deep,
No one for them can get much sleep. Mosquitoes and the chiggers, too, They arrgavate me thru and thru. The grass is full of bugs and midgets Which saw and gnaw me into fidgets I wonder and I often dream What place these things have in scheme.

It I'd been Noah on the Ark,
No itchy thing would've rode that bark;
Coal oil, smoke and insect paste, Those mighty mites would had to taste!

College "Wranglers"

Wrangler, literally a disputant in the colleges of Cambridge university, England, is a term now applied to a student who attains a place in the first-class in mathematics at that university. The head wrangler used to be known as the "senior wrangler," but that distinction is now at an end, as the names are no longer arranged in the order of merit.

There is a pyramid near Puebla, Mex., that is comparable to the pyramids of Egypt, according to Liberty. It was erected by the Toltec Indians, is more than 200 feet high, and has a base line of 1,000 feet. Cheops, largest of the Egyptian pyramids, has a base line of 750 feet and is 400 feet high.

DIVORCES ARE ON INCREASE

Commerce Department Reports Court Separations Gain 2.3 Per Cent In Year.

Little Dan Cupid works hard but he has the satisfaction of knowing he is getting results. According to reports of the department of commerce at Washington, inroads on his labors continue to grow in the divorce courts, but not as fast as the direct results of his escapades.

In 1926 there were 54,632 marriages in Ohio as compared with 52,317 in 1925, an increase of 4.5 per cent. During the same period 13,976 divorces were granted as compared with 13,666 in 1925, an increase of 2.3 per cent.

The estimated population of Ohio on July 1, 1926, was 6,600,000, and 6,470,000 on the same date in 1925. On the basis of these estimates the number of marriages per 1,000 population was 8.3 per cent in 1926 and 8.1 per cent in 1925. Divorce percentages were 2.12 in 1926 as against 2.11 in 1925.

Cuyahoga county led with 11,000 marriages recorded and Morgan was last with only 79. Population has its effect on the number, of course, but divorces were fewest in Monroe county, where only six were recorded in 1926.

Your Engine Is No Exception.
As it grows older it will wear. As it wears it needs a new lubrication diagnosis. Give it an oil of more body. Sinclair provides in the line of Sinclair Opaline Motor Oils several different grades of oils to serve the various clearances and degrees of wear encountered in all engines. Why not drive in and consult the Sinclair Recommendation Index, perhaps there is a grade of Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil better for your engine than the one you are now using.

Monster's Size Is Recorded as 36 by 48 Inches and Gross Tonnage Placed at 24½ Pounds.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The horrors that might have happened along the coast this summer are beyond words! Stop and think, citizens, of what might have occurred had that lobster gone 'way inshore at Long Beach as he no doubt intended! Or if he had changed his course and put in at Rockaway or come down to Coney Island!

Of course you don't know what we are talking about. But we were so stunned at considering the possibilities in that lobster we forgot all about telling you. Here's the idea: They caught a lobster the other day off Long Beach and the thing weighed 24½ pounds.

So now you see! Gosh, suppose that beast, or whatever it is you call a lobster, had gone inshore and attached himself to the left "pinkie" toe of one of Long Beach's bathing beauties. Or suppose he had butted head-on into the nonresisting paunch of a New York dry goods man out for a day's swimming.

Or suppose he'd gone down to Rockaway and adhered to the foot of a stout matron from the Bronx. Or had pressed himself lovingly against the quivering sides of a Flatbush flapper.

Or suppose he'd slipped into Coney Island and got himself mixed up with a picnic party. Or had meandered unthinkingly into a young man from Brownsville teaching a young lady from Canarsie how to swim.

Suppose any of these things, and then he'd be caught.

The good ship Rita, parentage unknown, brought him into Sheepshead bay late at night. The crustacean—you see we knew what he was all the time—was alive then, but he's died since. Anyway, he's on exhibition at an Emmons avenue shop, and if you don't believe there is such a thing go see him.

He weighs, as we have said, 24½ pounds. He was twenty years old when he passed away. He is 3 feet long. His beam, or width, is 48 inches.

Wouldn't you hate to meet that lobster in the dark?

Aerial "Locomotives" May Be Used in Near Future

Berlin.—Aerial freight and passenger trains consisting of an aerial "locomotive" towing six or more aerial "cars" may become commonplace in the near future.

Successful experiments with trailers have already been made in Germany and plans are being laid for more extended tests in the near future. These will probably be conducted by Antonius Raab, the German pilot who recently set out from the aerodrome at Cassel trailing a passenger-carrying glider in his wake, and flew over Darmstadt, Karlsruhe and Frankfurt demonstrating the practicability of towing gliders. At Frankfurt the occupant of the glider loosened the towing catch, and, sailing down independently from the powered machine, made a perfect landing.

Since this test Aviator Ferdinand Schultze at Rossitten made a new world's record in a motorless glider by remaining aloft 14 hours 8 minutes, a performance that, according to aviation experts, brings still nearer the day when people will be traveling about Europe and America in real aerial trains.

Fairy Flowers Are Fad Among Women in London

London.—Finding a fairy in flowers is the latest fad of the fashionable woman, and a most charming fad it is. At a West end restaurant a fair-haired woman in a leaf-green dress displayed an example of the new mode. On her right shoulder she wore a silken mauve orchid, but it wasn't an ordinary orchid at all. In the flower's center was a golden-haired fairylet, and the stem was the fairy's slim green-clad limbs.

Another example of this fashion was displayed in a pink chiffon frock worn by an American girl at Covent Garden recently at the premiere of "Turandot." On either side of her swathed waistband was a flat flower of palest pink velvet; in the flowers' centers were flat silken heads of fairy dolls with crisp curling golden hair resembling stamens.

Gold in Hens' Crops Leads to Mine Find

Montreal, Que.—An item from Charlottetown, P. E. I., announces a discovery of gold on the farm of Jack Matheson, a returned soldier. Extraction of pellets of pure gold from the crop of his poultry gave Matheson a clue to the presence of rich minerals on his place. He established that the poultry had been eating some of the deposit from an old well excavation and determined to dig in that vicinity. At a depth of some 38 feet he struck a rock formation similar to that which carried the gold found in the crops of his chickens, and since then he has himself dug up some nuggets.

CONTAINS A BRICK

Edinburgh, Scotland, July 28.—Sir Harry Lauder's birthplace honored the comedian today with the freedom of the city, but dissenters in the town council gave the little Scot a sharp dig in the ribs.
The freedom of the city was proposed in recognition of Sir Harry's war services, his efforts in raising funds for war charities, his labors to cement the ties of kinship between the mother country and the dominions and his pre-eminence as an exponent of Scottish song and humor.
Opposition was voiced by Councilman Gilzen, Laborite, who said Lauder presented to audiences a type of Scotsman not found in the heavens above, on the earth beneath or in the waters under the earth.
Councilman Crawford said no man had done more to bring Scottish songs into contempt than had Lauder. He asserted Sir Harry was a Tory propagandist who had denounced trade unions.
WHOLE CITY MADE POWERLESS BY BEE
Ottawa, July 28.—A honey bee today was the direct cause of Ottawa being without electric power for a time and injury to six persons.
The bee winged its way into the rear seat of an automobile and so distracted the attention of the driver that control of the machine was lost and the car crashed into a power pole, and snapped it off at its base.
The pole sustained wires carrying 33,000 volts of electricity. When it broke, it carried the wire down with it and broke them, leaving Ottawa temporarily without light and power.
Anthony Weger, of Delphos, his wife, two children, John Schafner, a nephew, and Frank Weger, suffered lacerations and bruises in the accident.

The Four Things That Matter.

There are four qualities we look for in a motor oil:

1. It must give perfect lubrication.
2. It must leave the engine in clean condition.
3. It must be economical to use.
4. It must be free from impurities that damage the engine.

On these four counts we have chosen Sinclair Opaline Motor Oils and we recommend them to our customers.

The Interrupted Proposal

By AD SCHUSTER

(Copyright.)

Leona Murray settled the problem of two suitors, of impecunious youth and affluent middle age, with this decision. For Fred Dashin, her young admirer, she held a mixed feeling of resentment and admiration. Had he not been so bashful he might have been long ago and there would have been no perplexing question. As to Aylott Plam, well, he could provide a good home, was not much over forty, and was good looking.

Perhaps if she had not been influenced by her parents the girl would have accepted neither, or it might have been she would have discouraged Aylott. For weeks she had received the attentions of both, hoping that Fred would summon sufficient courage to say the words which would rescue her from Aylott and the plans of a father and mother. And now, rendered desperate, she was determined to say "yes" to the first who asked.

Something of the seriousness of the situation may have occurred to Fred Dashin for he tried bravely to put the question. Obstinately Leona refused to help. She would never marry a coward, she told herself. If she were worth having she was worth the asking. So Fred stammered, ran his hand around his collar, and talked of the prospects for business with the election out of the way.

When he left he took home with him the declaration he should have made. He even took it to his office and voiced it, bravely this time, into a dictaphone. With the windows closed and the keyholes locked he spoke the tender words of love putting into them, unconsciously, the tones and the tricks of a man dictating a letter.

"Leona," he started, "there is a matter of importance I would like to, ahem, call to your attention. It had occurred to me, er—hmm—will you marry me?" As it struck him there was an anonymous quality about the declaration, and she might not be able to recognize the voice he added: "This is Fred Dashin speaking."

The rest would be simple. Leona's father still owned one of the old-fashioned talking machines designed for cylindrical records. He would send this one to the girl, count upon her playing it alone, for the father detested music, and await his answer. In this way, he reflected he would get in a proposal before the next evening when Aylott would call on Leona and it was just possible that every moment would count.

Leona received the package and recognizing the writing as Fred's refused to honor the gift with a trial. He had had his opportunity, she decided, and passed it by. Now she would give Aylott the chance and Aylott was romantic and eager. With the least encouragement he would propose, she would accept, and Fred Dashin could go through life with a broken heart. Strangely, the idea seemed to comfort the girl.

Aylott Plam, dressed in his best, expressed determination in every line when he called that evening. His long hair which gave a poetic appearance was glossed with a marvelous preparation which he hitherto held in contempt.

"Leona," he said, "this is a marvelous evening. The moon was made for poetry and love. It is the perfect opportunity." And Aylott paused to give the girl the full benefits of an adoring gaze.

The proposal was coming. She would accept him. Leona knew there was no backing out now, and that the plans she had cherished were about to be killed forever. Aylott's glance fell upon the talking machine and a new thought came.

The girl, wishing desperately that a storm would break to carry her, Aylott, and the house away that this proposal might be averted, fitted the cylinder to the machine. She started at the sound of Fred's voice, but her astonishment was as nothing compared to that of Aylott.

"Leona," he heard the machine saying, "there is a matter of importance I would like to, ahem, call to your attention. It has occurred to me, er—hmm—would you marry me?" "Shut it off! Shut it off! That's not music."

It may be said for Aylott that he persisted in spite of the embarrassing interruption. Leona stopped him.

"I cannot marry you, Aylott," she said, "because I have accepted another."

This has been made possible thru the efforts of Myers Y. Cooper the president, and others of the association.

The essay subject is to be "The Value of the Fair to Agriculture." The purpose of the contest is to create a greater interest in agriculture and farm life thru the medium of the county and independent fairs of the state.

The essay which is not to exceed 500 words is to be submitted to the secretary of the local fair board not later than November 1, 1927. The essays are to be judged by a committee of three, such committee to consist of one designated by the county school superintendent, one designated by the secretary of the fair board, and one designated by the secretary of the Grange or Farm bureau. The fair board secretary will fill any vacancies on the committee.

The rules of the contest require that the essay be written on one side of the paper only, either in script or typewritten.

Prizes given by each local county or independent fair will be as follows: First prize, $10; second prize, $7; third prize, $4; fourth prize $2; and 5th prize $1. SPOT LIGHT TO BE THROWN ON MERGER

GENERAL MOTORS, DUPONTS AND UNITED STATES STEEL

Buying of the Duponts de Nemours Powder Company of U. S. Steel Stock Frowned Upon By New Member of U. S. Trade Commission Who Orders Probe Be Made of Relationship of Financial Giants.

A sweeping inquiry into the relationships between the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., the General Motors Corporation and the U. S. Steel Corporation was ordered Friday at Washington by the federal trade commission.

The investigation will be conducted by the chief economist and will go directly to the question of the probable economic consequences of a community of interests among the three largest industrial corporations in the United States.

Upon the report of the economist will depend future action by the commission. The move of the commission, which came wholly unexpectedly, was upon motion of Commissioner A. F. Myers, the newest member of the trade regulatory body.

In its resolution directing the inquiry, the commission called attention to the published financial reports of the du Pont company showing that it had a large investment in the stock of the General Motors Corporation.

The resolution also recited that it had been currently reported in the press that the du Pont concern recently had acquired a large holding in the capital stock of the Steel Corporation with the expectation of having a number of directors in that organization as it now has in General Motors.

The establishment of a community of interest among these three corporations was declared to be "a matter of public concern." The commission then called attention to its authority of law to inquire into the organization, business conduct, practices and management of corporations generally.

This inquiry promises to be the most extensive the commission has conducted since it investigated the "big five" meat packers several years ago by direction of President Wilson.

The resolution adopted by the commission follows:

"Whereas, it appears from published financial reports of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., that it has a large investment in the stock of the General Motors Corporation, and

"Whereas, it is currently reported in the press that the du Pont company has recently acquired in the capital stock of the U. S. Steel Corporation, that it expects to have a number of directors representing its interests elected to the board of the latter company and in other ways to develop a close corporate connection among them and

"Whereas, the establishment of a community of interests among these three corporations, which are reputed to be among the largest industrial corporations in this country, is a matter of public concern, and

"Resolved, That the chief economist of this commission be directed to cause an inquiry to be made into the relationships, direct or indirect among the U. S. Steel Corporation, the General Motors Co., and the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., tending to bring them or any other important industrial corporation under a common ownership, control of manage-

In the absence of Pierre S. du Pont president, and other officials of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., at Wilmington, Delaware, the only statement obtainable regarding the federal trade commission's inquiry into the relationship between the du Pont General Motors, and U. S. Steel corporations, was issued by the publicity department. It read:

"Officials of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., said Friday they knew nothing of the proposed investigation by the federal trade commission of the company's holdings in General Motors and U. S. Steel. The officials further said, knowing nothing about it, they had nothing to say."

LAW AND ORDER LEADER HELD ON LIQUOR CHARGE.

Burt H. White, 34, president of the Law and Order League, was arrested Friday afternoon at Toledo on a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law.

White is said by federal prohibition officers to have been implicated by two alleged bootleggers arrested Thursday night as the intended purchaser of a case of beer and a quart of supposed whisky found in their possession.

The Law and Order League, under the direction of White, had just announced a campaign to attempt to rid Toledo of places conducting illegal business, such as disorderly houses, gambling and bootlegging places.

WOMEN HELD CONVENTION IN OAKLAND

Business Woman Has Become Strong Factor in the Present Day Life.

Women, perhaps, have reason to congratulate themselves upon the measure of their advancement in America, during the last quarter century at least.

The national convention of Business and Professional Women's clubs recently met in Oakland, California. There were 2,000 delegates present. It is to be doubted that the majority of complacent masculinity appreciate this remarkable showing of feminine strength. They will be compelled to realize it, however, for it is here, and daily becomes more evident.

The business and professional woman has become a strong factor in the fabric of present day civilization. She is to be found in every honorable walk of life open to men. And she is maintaining herself in these walks. Two thousand delegates should represent the best selected personalities from wide and varied groups of women in business and the professions. What then of the grand army of followers, whose representatives they are?

The convention at Oakland should open the eyes of the doubting — and possibly lagging — Thomases, who may have been indulged the patriarchal belief that a woman's place exclusively is in the home—her divine mission, the bearing of children.

Women will continue to be home-makers and child-bearers. They are horizons of beauty and usefulness and aspiration in her comprehension today that never bounded the lives of the millions of women who moved within the circumscribed circles of the feminine sphere in the old dead centuries.

The day has passed—and the Oakland convention seems clearly to indicate the fact—when the talents and industry of women can be discounted by the fact of her sex.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

STOUTSVILLE CAMPMEETING

The climax of the Stoutsville camp meeting will be reached Sunday when large crowds are expected to come and hear J. Balmer Showers, assistant editor of the Religious Telescope.

Dr. Showers has a wonderful, magnetic personality and it will be well worth your while to plan to come and hear him as he is a well known orator.

TRIPPED ON WIRE.

Mrs. George McGinness, of East Ohio street, tripped Friday afternoon near her home on a piece of wire and was thrown headlong. Her face and arms were badly skinned.

WESTERN UNION TIME.

Western Union-Naval observatory time signals are transmitted daily to some 120,000 subscribers, over approximately 250,000 miles of wire, connecting 25,000 Western Union offices, and the stations of some 200 railway systems. This, of course, is but a fraction of the company's total wire mileage, as there are many wires between the more important points, but it is enough to "hook up" the entire country.

By means of these electric signals the true time as computed by the United States naval observatory, is recorded on master clocks in Western Union offices, and from these the clocks of individual subscribers are corrected automatically every hour. Many hundreds of miles of local circuits are necessary in the larger cities to connect subscribers' clock with the main office. In New York, for example, there are more than 1,500 miles of local clock circuits.

ELKS' NEW RULER

John F. Malley of Boston, who was elected grand exalted ruler of the B. P. O. Elks at the meeting of the grand lodge at Cincinnati.

AMANDA WOMAN DIES.

Miss Hettie Dysinger passed away Friday morning at 5 o'clock at her home in Amanda.

She leaves one brother, Isaac and two sisters, Laura and Ellen, all of the home and four nieces.

Funeral services from the home Monday morning at 10 and burial in the Amanda township cemetery.

ARM BURNED.

Oliver Swank, of Darbyville, sustained severe burns to his right arm Saturday morning while assisting in threshing on the farm of Roy Wilkins. He threw a rag saturated with gasoline into a fire and the sudden blaze set fire to his coat sleeve which was also soaked with the inflammable oil. His arm was burned from the tips of his fingers to his elbow. He was brought to the office of Dr. Dunton where his wounds were dressed by Dr. Evans.

BODY OF FIRST NATIONAL BANK CASHIER FOUND

Body of Arthur Harry, Missing Wellston Man Found at Chillicothe.

A sad and gruesome sequel developed Thursday night to the exclusive story printed nine weeks ago by The Gazette telling that Arthur Harry, 45, cashier of the First National bank at Wellston, who had been a patient at a sanitarium at Cincinnati, and had disappeared from that institution, had, shortly after his disappearance, spent a night at the Warner hotel here sitting all night in the lobby and then disappeared again, this last two or three weeks ago.

Following the clue to the missing cashier's presence in this vicinity, a systematic search of the banks of the Scioto river starting at the Bridge street bridge was begun yesterday morning and the searchers were rewarded for their labors, last night, by the discovery of the badly decomposed body of Arthur Harry on the east bank of the river near Edgewater, some six miles southeast of Chillicothe.

The body was identified by Mrs. Harry, the missing cashier's wife, and by his brother-in-law, J. C. Gooding a lumber dealer of Wellston.

The body was found by John Rupert and an assistant who had been employed by Harry's relatives to make the search.

Immediately on report of the finding of the body, Deputy Sheriff Arthur Crago and Tom Ware, Jesse Jacobs and Edgar Ward, with the Ware ambulance, hurried down to the scene, Deputy Crago at the same time telephoning for Coroner Albert Frey. The body was taken at once to Ware's.

The body was found on the north river bank face down, as it was reported three clairvoyants had predicted it would be.

A belt buckle, gold crowned tooth, shoes and trousers made the identification of the body complete.

Prior to rendering an official verdict as to the cause of death, Coroner Frey said that Harry had either deliberately drowned himself, or had fallen from, or been knocked by a train from the railroad bridge over the Scioto.

Mr. Harry was born in Jackson county, being a son of Daniel J. Harry. He was well known and popular among the bankers of this section of Ohio, being also a Mason, an Elk and a Rotarian. Two children, a daughter, Patricia, and a son, Arthur Harry Jr., survive him.

The body was taken to Wellston. "Accidental drowning" was Coroner Frey's official verdict.—Scioto Gazette.

MILLIONS

Are Spent In the United States For Greeting Cards.

Few persons realize the magnitude of the industry that supplies the American people with its greeting cards, points out J. P. McEvoy in an article in this week's Liberty. "The greeting-card industry," he explains, "in spite of its phenomenal growth and undeniable importance, still exists in the popular mind as 'something to do with post cards.' But in one year," he continues, "more than $60,000,000 was spent for greeting cards in this country. One company alone lists more than 250 varieties of cards. And for the cards issued last year 27,842 verses were written. The greeting-card industry skims the cream of the best paper mills in this country, and is the largest importer of the finest handmade papers from all over the world. It is the greeting-card industry that has raised the standard of American printing and plate-making until they no longer need bow even to Leipsic and Munich traditions."

1927 CORN CROP LOWEST SINCE 1901

Washington, July 28.—The 1927 corn crop, estimated at 2,275,000,000 bushels, will be the lowest produced in the United States in 26 years. "This year's crop," government officials say, "is unusually late. Much of it still is under cultivation, whereas under normal conditions it should have been laid by. Corn responds to warm weather, and this season has been cool and wet. Records of the past 36 years indicate that the amount of rainfall is the dominant factor governing corn yield." The nation produced 2,645,000,000 bushels last year.

HORSE BEATS TRAIN

Newark, O., July 28.—(UP.)—Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, speaking at a centennial celebration of the Newark Division Veterans' Association today, told of the first test of a steam locomotive on the B. & O. lines. The B. & O. was chartered in 1827 and started operation with horsepower trains in 1828. It was not until 1830 that steam locomotive was tested. It was called upon to race a horse-drawn train along the road's double track from Baltimore to Ellicott Mills, 14 miles. The horse won.

Jim Lathbury's Ghost

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright)

"BUT I do not love you, Henry," protested Elsie Freeman, drawing back from Henry Flagg's nearness. "I thought that you understood that after Jim's death I could never care for any man in that way."

Henry Flagg frowned darkly. "Elsie," he said patiently, "you and Jim were only engaged to be married."

"I am afraid, Henry, that I could not be happy unless I truly loved you," said the girl calmly.

"Why can't you love me?" he demanded furiously. "Jim Lathbury was my own cousin, and people said we were enough alike to be twins—so why can't you care for me—as well as you did for him?"

Elsie stared at him pityingly. She had never cared much for Henry, but because he was Jim's cousin and they had been in the war together, she did try to be nice to him, for Jim's sake.

"Don't you really believe that Jim was killed?" he asked bluntly.

Elsie paled. "Why, I have doubted it—did you?"

"No—of course I believe it—haven't I succeeded to his estate? I can't help believing it, Elsie," he went on in a low, intense tone, "because ever since I have been living at Lathbury house, I have been haunted by Jim's ghost!"

Elsie stared at him with wide open blue eyes. Then, the lids suddenly drooping, she slipped from her chair to the floor, unconscious.

Henry rang for a maid. "You better get her to bed, Minna," said Henry.

Minna brought some tea, and Elsie picked up a magazine, but always between her eyes and the printed page appeared the brave, handsome face of her lover, Jim Lathbury, who had been an aviator during the World War. Jim had been reported killed, but his body was never recovered. Five years had passed since that time, and still Elsie, who had been his promised wife, mourned him, and the property went to Henry Flagg, Mr. Lathbury's nearest relative, a cousin.

That evening Henry came to inquire about Elsie.

"Henry," she said, "did you really mean what you said about seeing Jim's ghost at the house?"

"Yes," he said.

"I believe you," she said frankly.

"And I want to see it, too, Henry—say tomorrow night."

"Very well—of course you know it will not be until midnight."

She nodded. "I will bring Minna with me—mother is going to New York for a couple of days with father."

The next night at eleven o'clock Elsie drove over to Lathbury house while Minna shivered inside the little car. It was a bright starry night, and the dewy fragrance of many flowers came from the big gardens that would have been Elsie's if she and Jim had been married. Elsie thought she saw a man's figure down in the rose garden, and she decided that she would speak to Henry about it, but when they reached the front door, there Henry was waiting. He hurried them up to the picture gallery. Elsie tossed her coat and hat on a seat and sank down in the deep chair. She confided to Minna the reason why she had come, and Minna sat down in a remote corner to wait.

About five minutes to twelve a servant summoned Henry to the telephone, and with a promise to Elsie to return at once, Henry disappeared.

Elsie was thankful to be alone for if her lost lover was to be there, even in spirit, she wanted to be alone.

Then, suddenly, Jim Lathbury was there!

Elsie sat stunned, noting his khaki uniform, muddy and wet, saw Jim's despairing face, white under the aviator's close hood. Then, the lights dimming to a mere grayness, he vanished, and then the lights were on again, and Henry stood beside her holding her hand in his cold one.

"You saw him, dear?" he whispered hoarsely.

"Yes," wailed the girl, "and before I could speak to him, Jim had gone away—Oh, Jim, Jim, Jim!" and the girl tore herself away and Minna's strong arms were around her and held her up.

Then there was a confusion, for a man suddenly dashed into the gallery and knocked Henry to the floor where he remained too inert to arise. Elsie, giving one glance at the stranger, found it was no stranger at all—it was Jim Lathbury, her own true love in the flesh.

"It is Mr. Jim! The real Mr. Jim!" exclaimed Minna.

But Elsie knew by the warm kisses that covered her face, that at last her belief in Jim being alive was vindicated. He whispered a story of being wounded, captured, and of his not knowing even his own name or identity. He had remained in Germany working as a farmhand all these years, until a great doctor saw him, recognized him and effected a cure. He had returned to find his parents dead and his estate in the hands of his cousin. Tonight he had just arrived when Elsie saw him in the rose garden, and he had come into the house—it was Elsie's scream of "Jim—Jim—Jim!" that had brought him into action.

So the ghost of Henry's imagination had realized and claimed his promised wife.

SHAKE UP DRY UNITS

To Drop Agents In Buffalo and New York.

Washington, July 28.—(UP.)—Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Doran has ordered a general shakeup of the Buffalo and New York City dry offices.

Doran said several prohibition agents in each of the districts would be asked to resign. He requested Maurice Campbell, administrator at New York and

Andrew McCampbell, Buffalo administrator, to prepare reports recommending which agents should be dropped.

The shakeup, Doran believes, will aid in clearing up "the two most disturbing situations" in the prohibition organization.

Two-Piece Outfit for Summer Wear

In Lines and Combinations That Bring New Fashion Into Limelight.

The two-piece dress that dominates the mode so distinctly, merely follows up its popularity of last year. It comes, however, in lines and combinations that are new and so serves to establish a new mode.

Frocks in two-pieces are now to be found in the jumper fashion, of course, but are also seen in bolero effects, opened jackets with vestees and in contrasting fabrics of varied colors.

Skirts in the two-piece mode are permitted a wide choice in their designs. They may be rather circular, giving a pronounced flare; they may be straight with but one plait to relieve the severity; they may be entirely plaited in side or accordion plaits; they may be of a plain yoke or peplum and be plaited in uneven numbers below or be cut so as to flare and give an uneven hemline.

Blouses, too, have variety. They are bloused or straight; they are tailored or lavishly trimmed; they are sheer in fabric or heavy. They have bows at shoulders, bows at the waist, flying scarfs, low collars, high collars, tucks, shirrings or plain lines. The blouse and skirt may vary in shades as well as fabric. Sometimes the only connecting link lies in the trimming.

Of course there are dresses in two-pieces which are of one color and one fabric and it is such a frock that Natli Barr, "movie" star, wears in "Diamonds in the Rough."

Laces and Chiffons in Animated Designs

Every woman loves a fluttery sort of frock for warm weather festivities. The success of scalloped and irregular chiffons has been amazing. Now come laces and more chiffons in all sorts of "animated" designs. This term has been used to distinguish such frocks as are at their best in action, as against dresses characterized by "statue" draperies.

It seemed to some who attended the Paris midsummer opening that there was a tendency toward what some one described as "neater evening dresses." "Plainer," or even "more severe," might be a better way of expressing it. Chanel started the minds of makers of smart clothes along tailored channels when she added saddle buckles and tailored-looking belts and buttons to chiffon and lace dresses intended for the more frivolous moments of life. Now one finds lace being used in one and two-piece models that are almost severe in effect, and that, like so many other models, are belted, even buckled.

"Women of Importance," as some tactful soul has called the dowagers, or perhaps the matrons, are partial to soft lines. Severely tailored things belong to youth, mature figures being best concealed under graceful draperies. Hence the continuance in favor of uneven hems achieved by petals or pointed panels, of plaits, and of draperies, especially those which occur at either the side or front.

Light-Weight Sweaters Made of Shaggy Wool

Angora wool is one of the important innovations of French summer styles, as compared with spring fashions. Light-weight sweaters are made of the shaggy wool, and some of the prettiest embroidery on sports things is worked in angora wool thread. Embroidered dots are the usual form, but angora wool band embroidery and angora cross-stitch are also seen.

Worth has a pretty rose-colored angora sweater with a white zigzag design woven in it and white dots embroidered in the angles. A plaited skirt of rose crepe de chine goes with it.

"Rich Men's Sons," the Columbia drama that opened at the Met theater last night, easily takes rank as good entertainment, providing as it does an abundance of laughs and thrills in a swiftly moving story of youthful romance and daring.

The plot is pleasingly simple and is presented in a convincing manner under the competent direction of Ralph Graves, who in this production makes his commendable debut as a megaphone wielder and is a featured player as well.

A railroad president's waster son finds himself disowned by his father and arrested for the theft of a society girl's valuable vanity case—which he did not take—all in the same day. He is brought before the girl, who is in charge of her father's steel mill, and for punishment is put to work as an office boy to earn the money value of the lost vanity.

Financial as well as labor troubles confront the girl, and she is in danger of losing the mill. The only help lies in a contract with the railroad president, which he will not sign.

When things look blackest, the boy wakes up. How he gets the necessary signature, and saves the day for the mill and the girl and girl for him self, makes for a good measure of genuinely dramatic situations.

An exciting race between the boy's high powered speed car and the father's lightning express train provides a particularly thrilling bit.

Petite Shirley Mason handles the role of the young society girl who awakens the boy's real self, with engaging sincerity, while Ralph Graves makes the most of his opportunities as the boy. George Fawcett plays the railroad magnate in his own accomplished fashion; Robert Cain is equally easy as the smooth villain. The capable cast is completed by Frances Raymond as the aristocratic mother; Scott Seaton as the steel man; Walter James, a burly mill worker and Johnny Fox an ingenious office boy.

THE MIGHTY MITES.

The mighty mites are mighty bitey: Sometimes they make one very flighty!

They crawl and creep and sting so deep.

No one for them can get much sleep. Mosquitoes and the chiggers, too, They arragvate me thru and thru. The grass is full of bugs and midgets Which saw and gnaw me into fidgets I wonder and I often dream What place these things have in scheme.

If I'd been Noah on the Ark, No itchy thing would've rode that bark;

Coal oil, smoke and insect paste, Those mighty mites would had to taste!

Wrangler, literally a disputant in the colleges of Cambridge University, England, is a term now applied to a student who attains a place in the first-class in mathematics at that university. The head wrangler used to be known as the "senior wrangler," but that distinction is now at an end, as the names are no longer arranged in the order of merit.

There is a pyramid near Puebla, Mex., that is comparable to the pyramids of Egypt, according to Liberty. It was erected by the Toltec Indians. DIVORCES ARE ON INCREASE

Commerce Department Reports Court Separations Gain 2.3 Per Cent In Year.

Little Dan Cupid works hard but he has the satisfaction of knowing he is getting results. According to reports of the department of commerce at Washington, inroads on his labors continue to grow in the divorce courts, but not as fast as the direct results of his escapades.

In 1926 there were 54,632 marriages in Ohio as compared with 52,317 in 1925, an increase of 4.5 per cent. During the same period 13,976 divorces were granted as compared with 13,666 in 1925, an increase of 2.3 per cent.

The estimated population of Ohio on July 1, 1926, was 6,600,000, and 6,470,000 on the same date in 1925. On the basis of these estimates the number of marriages per 1,000 population was 8.3 per cent in 1926 and 8.1 per cent in 1925. Divorce percentages were 2.12 in 1926 as against 2.11 in 1925.

Cuyahoga county led with 11,000 marriages recorded and Morgan was last with only 79. Population has its effect on the number, of course, but divorces were fewest in Monroe county, where only six were recorded in 1926.

GIANT LOBSTER CAPTURED OFF LONG ISLAND COAST

Monster's Size Is Recorded as 36 by 48 inches and Gross Tonnage Placed at 24½ Pounds.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The horrors that might have happened along the coast this summer are beyond words! Stop and think, citizens, of what might have occurred had that lobster gone 'way inshore at Long Beach as he no doubt intended! Or if he had changed his course and put in at Rockaway or come down to Coney Island!

Of course you don't know what we are talking about. But we were so stunned at considering the possibilities in that lobster we forgot all about telling you. Here's the idea: They caught a lobster the other day off Long Beach and the thing weighed 24½ pounds.

So now you see! Gosh, suppose that beast, or whatever it is you call a lobster, had gone inshore and attached himself to the left "pinkie" toe of one of Long Beach's bathing beauties. Or suppose he had butted head-on into the nonresisting paunch of a New York dry goods man out for a day's swimming.

Or suppose he'd gone down to Rockaway and adhered to the foot of a stout matron from the Bronx. Or had pressed himself lovingly against the quivering sides of a Flatbush flapper.

Or suppose he'd slipped into Coney Island and got himself mixed up with a picnic party. Or had meandered unthinkingly into a young man from Brownsville teaching a young lady from Canarsie how to swim.

Suppose any of these things, and then he glad he was caught.

The good ship Rita, parentage unknown, brought him into Sheepshead bay late at night. The crustacean—you see we knew what he was all the time—was alive then, but he's died since. Anyway, he's on exhibition at an Emmons avenue shop, and if you don't believe there is such a thing go see him.

He weighs, as we have said, 24½ pounds. He was twenty years old when he passed away. He is 3 feet long. His beam, or width, is 48 inches.

Wouldn't you hate to meet that lobster in the dark?

Aerial "Locomotives" May Be Used in Near Future

Berlin.—Aerial freight and passenger trains consisting of an aerial "locomotive" towing six or more aerial "cars" may become commonplace in the near future.

Successful experiments with trailers have already been made in Germany and plans are being laid for more extended tests in the near future. These will probably be conducted by Antonius Raab, the German pilot who recently set out from the aerodrome at Cassel trailing a passenger-carrying glider in his wake, and flew over Darmstadt, Karlsruhe and Frankfurt demonstrating the practicability of towing gliders. At Frankfurt the occupant of the glider loosened the towing catch, and, sailing down independently from the powered machine, made a perfect landing.

Since this test Aviator Ferdinand Schultz at Rossitten made a new world's record in a motorless glider by remaining aloft 14 hours 8 minutes, a performance that, according to aviation experts, brings still nearer the day when people will be traveling about Europe and America in real aerial trains.

Fairy Flowers Are Fad Among Women in London

London.—Finding a fairy in flowers is the latest fad of the fashionable woman, and a most charming fad it is. At a West end restaurant a fair-haired woman in a leaf-green dress displayed an example of the new mode. On her right shoulder she wore a silken mauve orchid, but it wasn't an ordinary orchid at all. In the flower's center was a golden-haired fairylet, and the stem was the fairy's slim green-clad limbs.

Another example of this fashion was displayed in a pink chiffon frock worn by an American girl at Covent Garden recently at the premiere of "Turandot." On either side of her swathed waistband was a flat flower of palest pink velvet; in the flowers' centers were flat silken heads of fairy dolls with crisp curling golden hair resembling stamens.

Gold in Hens' CropsLeads to Mine Find

Montreal, Que.—An item from Charlottetown, P. E. I., announces a discovery of gold on the farm of Jack Matheson, a returned soldier. Extraction of pellets of pure gold from the crop of his poultry gave Matheson a clue to the presence of rich minerals on his place. He established that the poultry had been eating some of the deposit from an old well excavation and determined to dig in that vicinity. At a depth of some 38 feet he struck a rock formation similar to that which carried the gold found in the crops of his chickens, and since then he has himself dug up some nuggets.

HARRY'S BOUQUET CONTAINS A BRICK

Edinburgh, Scotland, July 28.—Sir Harry Lauder's birthplace honored the comedian today with the freedom of the city, but dissenters in the town council gave the little Scot a sharp dig in the ribs.

The freedom of the city was proposed in recognition of Sir Harry's war services, his efforts in raising funds for war charities, his labors to cement the ties of kinship between the mother country and the dominions and his pre-eminence as an exponent of Scottish song and humor.

Opposition was voiced by Councilman Gilzen, Laborite, who said Lauder presented to audiences a type of Scotsman not found in the heavens above, on the earth beneath or in the waters under the earth.

Councilman Crawford said no man had done more to bring Scottish songs into contempt than had Lauder. He asserted Sir Harry was a Tory propagandist who had denounced trade unions.

WHOLE CITY MADE POWERLESS BY BEE

Ottawa, July 28.—A honey bee today was the direct cause of Ottawa being without electric power for a time and injury to six persons.

The bee winged its way into the rear seat of an automobile and so distracted the attention of the driver that control of the machine was lost and the car crashed into a power pole, and snapped it off at its base.

The pole sustained wires carrying 33,000 volts of electricity. When it broke, it carried the wire down with it and broke them, leaving Ottawa temporarily without light and power.

Anthony Weger, of Delphos, his wife, two children, John Schafner, a nephew, and Frank Weger, suffered lacerations and bruises in the accident.

The Four Things That Matter.

There are four qualities we look for in a motor oil:

1. It must give perfect lubrication.
2. It must leave the engine in clean condition.
3. It must be economical to use.
4. It must be free from impurities that damage the engine.

On these four counts we have chosen Sinclair Opaline Motor Oils and we recommend them to our customers.

The Interrupted Proposal

By AD SCHUSTER

(Copyright.)

Leona Murray settled the problem of two suitors, of impecunious youth and affluent middle age, with this decision. For Fred Dashin, her young admirer, she held a mixed feeling of resentment and admiration. Had he not been so bashful he might have won long ago and there would have been no perplexing question. As to Aylott Plam, well, he could provide a good home, was not much over forty, and was good looking.

Perhaps if she had not been influenced by her parents the girl would have accepted neither, or it might have been she would have discouraged Aylott. For weeks she had received the attentions of both, hoping that Fred would summon sufficient courage to say the words which would rescue her from Aylott and the plans of a father and mother. And now, rendered desperate, she was determined to say "yes" to the first who asked.

Something of the seriousness of the situation may have occurred to Fred Dashin for he tried bravely to put the question. Obstinate Leona refused to help. She would never marry a coward, she told herself. If she were worth having she was worth the asking. So Fred stammered, ran his hand around his collar, and talked of the prospects for business with the election out of the way.

When he left he took home with him the declaration he should have made. He even took it to his office and voiced it, bravely this time, into a dictaphone. With the windows closed and the keyholes locked he spoke the tender words of love putting into them, unconsciously, the tones and the tricks of a man dictating a letter.

"Leona," he started, "there is a matter of importance I would like to, ahem, call to your attention. It had occurred to me, er—hmm—will you marry me?" As it struck him there was an anonymous quality about the declaration and she might not be able to recognize the voice he added: "This is Fred Dashin speaking."

The rest would be simple. Leona's father still owned one of the old-fashioned talking machines designed for cylindrical records. He would send this one to the girl, count upon her playing it alone, for the father detested music, and await his answer. In this way, he reflected he would get in a proposal before the next evening when Aylott would call on Leona and it was just possible that every moment would count.

Leona received the package and recognizing the writing as Fred's refused to honor the gift with a trial. He had had his opportunity, she decided, and passed it by. Now she would give Aylott the chance and Aylott was romantic and eager. With the least encouragement he would propose, she would accept, and Fred Dashin could go through life with a broken heart. Strangely, the idea seemed to comfort the girl.

Aylott Plam, dressed in his best, expressed determination in every line when he called that evening. His long hair which gave a poetic appearance was glossed with a marvelous preparation which he hitherto held in contempt.

"Leona," he said, "this is a marvelous evening. The moon was made for poetry and love. It is the perfect opportunity." And Aylott paused to give the girl the full benefits of an adoring gaze.

The proposal was coming. She would accept him. Leona knew there was no backing out now, and that the plans she had cherished were about to be killed forever. Aylott's glance fell upon the talking machine and a new thought came.

The girl, wishing desperately that a storm would break to carry her, Aylott, and the house away that this proposal might be averted, fitted the cylinder to the machine. She started at the sound of Fred's voice, but her astonishment was as nothing compared to that of Aylott.

"Leona," he heard the machine saying, "there is a matter of importance I would like to, ahem, call to your attention. It has occurred to me, er—hmm—would you marry me?" "Shut it off! Shut it off! That's not music."

It may be said for Aylott that he persisted in spite of the embarrassing interruption. Leona stopped him. "I cannot marry you, Aylott," she said, "because I have accepted another."

Park in Center of State

The Pike National forest, which takes its name from Pike's peak, perhaps the most famous mountain in the United States, is located exactly in the center of the state of Colorado, on the east slope of the continental divide, and has a gross area of 1,256,112 acres, of which 1,084,700 acres is public land. It is drained partly by the South Platte and partly by the Arkansas rivers.
